An insatiable desire for knowledge and a creative, penetrating, inventive mind are two of the qualities found under the sign of Virgo. These same two qualities are essential in appreciating English and the foreign Languages to their fullest. To study English, the style and the literature, a perceptive mind like that of Virgo is a necessity. In writing short stories or even in understanding a piece of poetry, Virgos have the ability to invent and to comprehend. In studying a foreign language also, the same comprehension and understanding is needed to learn not only to speak the language but to work hard for an education. Although some languages are difficult, Virgos master them with ease. For these reasons, the sign of Virgo and the study of English and Language appear to be synonymous as they possess the same qualities.

Libras' dire need for seeing that justice is done leads them to the forefront of controversial causes. The program of social studies instills in us that same desire and presents to us the same goals toward peace and tranquility, characteristic of the Libra sign. The skills acquired in social studies demonstrate to us that the scales of justice (symbol of Libra) may be rocked against the wind, yet balance will be maintained.

in the face of adversity. A Libran is independent and equipped to solve major problems as we hope most of those who have passed through this department will be. Adolescent Librans are destined to play important roles in our times and will have much to do with war and peace tomorrow. Social Studies is designed to prepare you to cope with this great destiny and enable you to work towards a life of leadership and public service.

Activities is placed under the sign of Capricorn. Person born under this sign are very well organized and they can also plan activities very well. They also make very good leaders instead of followers. They'll begin to plan something and will not finish it until it is flawless. These people also enjoy participating in these events. They feel that it gives them prestige. Capricorn is ruled by the planet Saturn. This is an immensely versatile planet. This would make the person born under this astrological sign a very unusual person with a versatile personality. Capricorn is represented by the sign of the mountain goat. The symbol of the goat is used because Capricornians try to climb high socially, as the mountain goat tries to climb high on the mountain, because of this they are well suited for activities.

Well known for their domestic qualities and their abilities and skills to make use of their hands are Sagittarians. These are shown within the Homemaking, Business and Industrial Arts programs. A person taking homemaking courses must be domestic with the abilities to overcome small problems that may arise in daily life. Sagittarius is the sign of the archer, representing ingenuity, skill and strength. Industrial arts indeed requires an ingenuity and skill as does business. The Industrial Art classes have demonstrated such Sagittarian qualities as shown by the products that have been produced. In business, Sagittarians are known to be clever and knowledgeable. Two traits very necessary to make an excellent businessman. As a group these three courses are well suited for the sign Sagittarius.

The traits Scorpions possess make them excellent workers in the fields of math and science. The characteristics of Scorpions are needed to be successful in both fields. Efficiency, ingenuity, and genius are all signs of Scorpions. These are important in math and science, especially for more advanced courses like chemistry and physics, algebra, and advanced math. Scorpions can take almost any problem and find the quickest way to solve it. They know what must be done, and are self-discipliners, two aspects which are very important in both fields. Scorpions concentrate on their problems not caring at all how their opponent is doing. These are all good reasons for Scorpions success in both science and math. Each requires the traits of the eleventh sign of the zodiac.

The sign of Aquarius is one that displays strength. Those born under this sign are extremely active because of their love for physical education. An Aquarian loves competing with other people and they usually win. They've been noted to keep themselves in the very best of health and usually live to be quite old. When they have any spare time you often find them out jogging around the block or playing tennis. Theirs is an energy that will never run out and a strength that cannot be compared. People with qualities of Aquarius are leaders they go out to others and try to bring them into physical fitness programs. They know the benefits a good physical fitness program can bring to anyone that participates in it. Aquarians are concerned for others and it is because of this they promote physical fitness programs.

The astrological charts define Pisceans as being extremely sensitive people with an inclination to be talented in the fields of arts and music. Their native sensitivity or insight are two qualities that provide them with the abilities of expression and communication in the medium of art. These same qualities enable these individuals to be able to express themselves through music also. To be artistic one must feel deeply on life and living. To be a Piscean is to be a dreamer. Music also requires that a person have great insight into people and living. How else can one perform a piece by Brahms or Chopin meaningfully? Without Pisceans, I wonder if any great things could ever have been accomplished in the areas of art and music. One of the most famous Pisceans is Harry Belafonte.

Good judgment, sharp wit, and a mind constantly aware of facts, are those qualities that make up an Aries. Those who have these qualities are those in communications. They are very quick to learn and accomplish anything that they set out to do, like those who have the responsibility to spread news and kept up to date. Aries seldom forget matters of importance because they constantly take interest and pay attention to what is going on around them. They display an independent nature in most matters having been noted to rebel at forms of restraint. They are outspoken as their job requires. They have a diplomatic and tactful way about them that gets them to the right places at the right time. They are capable of exerting a high degree of influence upon people and will eventually be able to communicate with the world.

The astrological sign Taurus is related in many ways to the Kimball sports program. The qualities that the people born under the sign of Taurus have are also those of good athletes. Some characteristics of Taurians can be compared with Kimball's athletes such as their outstanding athletic abilities and their spirit for fighting and winning. They always prove to be tough competition. These attributes can easily be seen during any one of the sports events.

TAURUS

Also there are many qualities that are noticed during the long hours of practicing such as; they are very stubborn and when criticized they make it their responsibility to improve themselves. Because of great records in all sports, and hardworking athletes, Kimball's entire sports program can easily be classified under the astrological sign, Taurus, obviously the sign of the world's outstanding athletes.

Gemini in the Zodiac is represented by the twins. Geminians are well liked by many different types of people; they also enjoy being with people. They have an abundance of knowledge as they learn very quickly and retain what they learn. They are very fast moving individuals and are always on the go. As you can see these are qualities all held by seniors. Seniors are all very close and usually stay together, sort of a

Three Musketeers "all for one, one for all" type of thing. After acquiring twelve years of school they have a great amount of knowledge on the arts, sciences, social studies, and current events. One of the activities seniors participate in is one that will effect the rest of their lives; graduation. After graduation they become brothers, truly Geminians.

Improved Communications Stressed Throughout English-Language Depts.

Since English is a required course for three years in high school, it effects the lives of most every student, as the curriculum attempts to provide a full language program.

With the exception of Enriched English and the ESSM program, a freshman is limited to the more basic course in which he covers literature, poetry, and polishing his grammar skills.

In a sophomore class, concentration is placed on writing and grammar skills.

American Literature and Speech must be taken when a student reaches his junior year. Each semester course supplies the fundamentals need to continue on to more advanced studies.

To complete the final year of English, seniors are given a choice of Advanced Composition, which teaches a student to organize his thoughts and express them clearly, along with the basic principles of spelling, punctuation, and sentence construction; Novel, based on interpreting literature and developing reading skills; Drama, the study of acting techniques, directing, set design, and make-up application; World Literature, in which the student studies masterpieces from the Renaissance, the Enlightenment, and the modern age, in an effort to see the development of the western thought and literature; Senior Speech, for the pursuit of perfect public speaking; English Lit I, dealing with literature from the Anglo-Saxon period into the middle 1700's; and English Lit II, covering from the Restoration to modern days.

(Upper Left) As part of her preparation for teaching Miss Kaput, Mr. Rosen's student teacher, helps to lead the Journalism students in the study of headline structure. (Lower Left) Constructive criticism is an important part of Radio Speech. By pointing out each other's mistakes, students are able to improve their techniques. Freshman Kim Johnson comments on the presentation of the "Voice of the Knights" program. (Center Left) Senior Ann McGookey listens intently as Miss Cornell lectures about the mechanics of composition writing to her Senior Comp. class. (Lower Right) Lisa Sturges ponders the question which has been posed to her by Mr. Solis in her Spanish II class.

In this day of increased world travel the knowledge of a foreign language is almost as important as a thorough understanding of the English language. Freshmen are offered a choice of French, German, Latin, or Spanish. While the same series of texts are not used, the methods of study are similar.

The first year of a language may seem difficult, at first, but it is perhaps the most important because the essentials of the particular language, which will be used throughout one's studies, are learned. Basic dialogs teach vocabulary and sentence structure, enabling the student to engage in a simple conversation with classmates. The language lab is used extensively to improve comprehension and pronunciation.

The second year places more emphasis on grammar structures. Speeches, compositions, and skits are used along with basic sentences from the text to increase the student's overall knowledge of the language.

On the third year level courses are directed at increasing vocabulary and developing speed in thinking in the language. The excitement of reading novels by well-known authors is also added to the program. By the third year most teachers, if they haven't already forbidden the use of English in the classroom to the point of threatening to lower a grade. That is not nearly as severe as it sounds however for the best way to learn is to practice, and a foreign language is no exception.

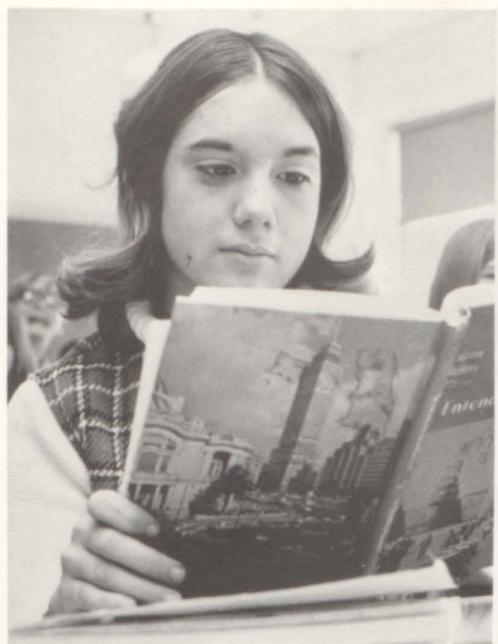

The fourth year class is bound to be enjoyable for those who elect it. As well as looking impressive on college applications, it provides the student with as complete an education possible in high school. Since our text is completed early in the year, the remaining months are spent reading and philosophizing.

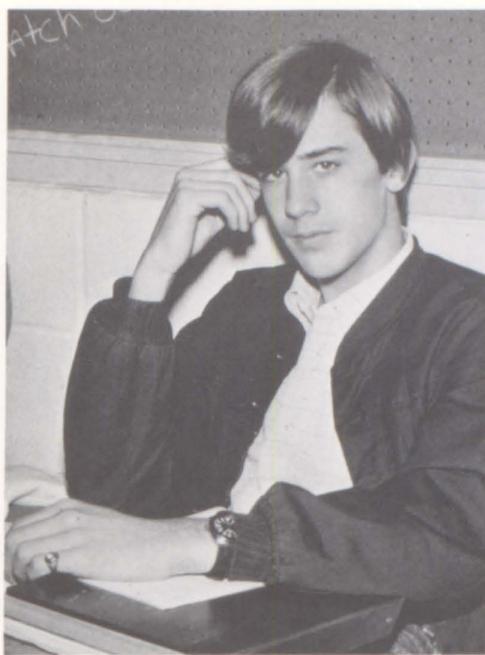

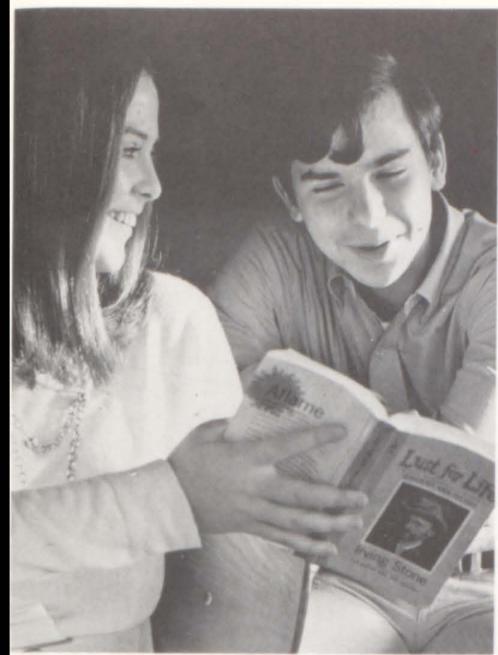

At the completion of four years of study a student should never find himself at a loss for words in his chosen language.

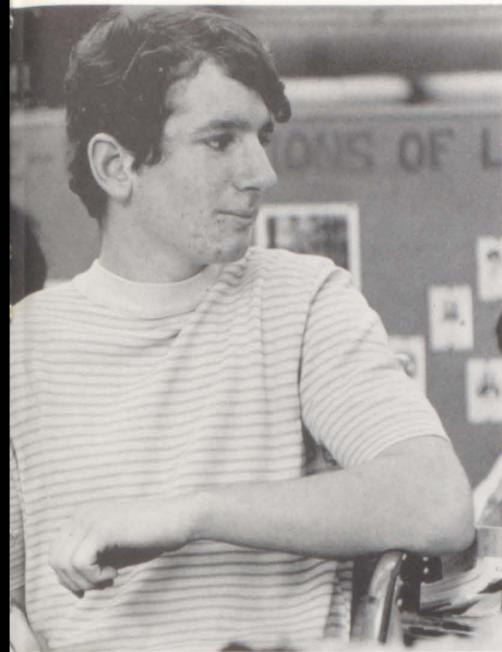

(Upper Left) Barb House is oblivious to the rest of the class as she concentrates on illustrating her ideas in words, one of the skills taught by Miss Cornell in her second hour advanced composition class. (Upper Center Left) A tired gaze into her Spanish I book shows that Kathy Hutton doesn't appreciate the endless verb conjugations that Mrs. Sarco has assigned in class. (Upper Center Right) As she writes her book report for English I, Liz Ruckenbroad, stops to point out an amusing part to Brian Spann, from Lust for Life, a biography on Vincent VanGogh. (Far Upper Right) Advanced Composition, required for a college prep dip oma stresses the creative use of words and the basic structure of writing. Here, Bob Alden wonders how to perfect his homework assignment that Miss Cornell is waiting for. (Lower Right) In their senior English Lit. class Lynette Sears, Paul Dye, Vaughn Irish, Barb Hill, and David Flones prepare a discussion they will present to the class on the literary works of William Shakespeare.

(Lower Left) Sophomores in Mrs. Palaia's English class discover discussions on classroom assignments bring on a clearness and understanding between both teacher and student. She feels a teacher can communicate better on a face-to-face basis. (Upper Left) Book reports take on a new appeal as Linda Fisher uses a collage to describe the unknown world of the future to her English I Class. (Upper Center Right) Nouns, pronouns, verbs and adverbs are all important elements of the English language. To learn correct use, freshmen Debby Peane, Dave Peltier and Bill Newman practice with their grammar workbooks in Mrs. Goldberg's 9th grade English class. (Upper Far Right) Reading a difficult passage out loud helps to make translation easier as Mary McHugh demonstrates in her Latin I class. (Lower Center Right) One of the signs of a good announcer is shown by Dennis Naas as he finds it necessary to check his notes. Here he flashes a smile as he presents "Voice of Kimball Knights" to his radio speech class. (Lower right) Barb Von Christscroff listens as Michelle Kozlowicz recites her role in their conversation during their German I class. These conversations are one of the many ways used to improve the students' vocabulary.

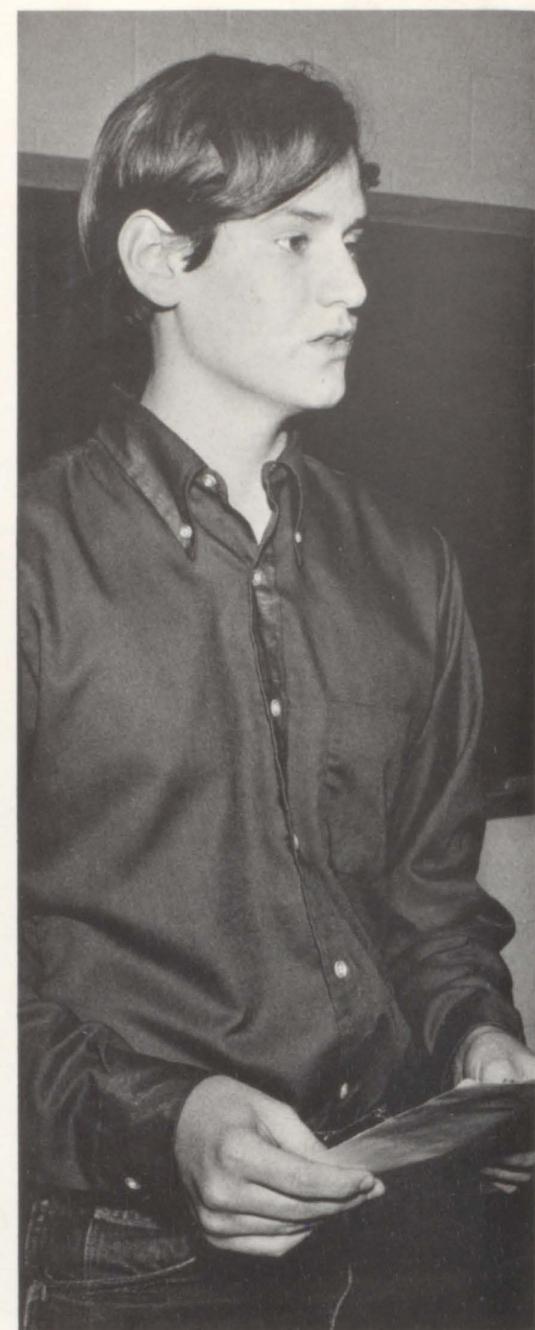

(Upper Left) Mrs. Clemans' Enriched English II class focuses on many parts of our language. Group discussions such as the one John Sheridan, Larry Hadley, Leslie Nagel, Sue Patterson and Chuck Rymal are giving teach the importance of teamwork. (Far Lower Left) English Literature proves to be a captivating subject for Linnea Slater, as she listens attentively and takes notes on Miss Less' lecture. (Center Lower Left) Judy Karne and Ann Connors exclaim with joy at their team's victory in a game of "Phantom." The game is enjoyed by both teacher and students in this French IV class. (Lower Left) Oral reports are one of the many requirements placed on a student in English I. Pictured is Bob Turner listening to one of his classmates deliver a speech. (Upper Right) Fulfilling the requirements of one novel a week, Debbie Sammons finishes Andersonville for her novel class. As a one-semester course, it gives students a full background of famous literature. (Lower Right) In Mrs. Hutson's German III class the emphasis is on perfecting written structure and speaking ability. Leigh Schaffner, Liz Groeller, Barb Jefferies, and Chris Purple correct a test and discuss the most commonly made errors.

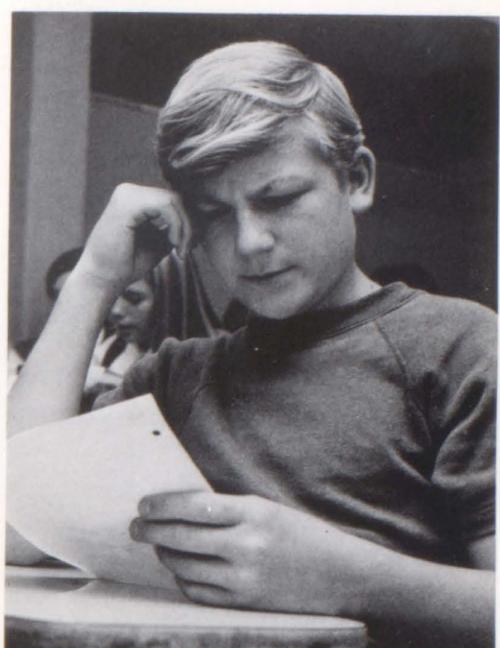

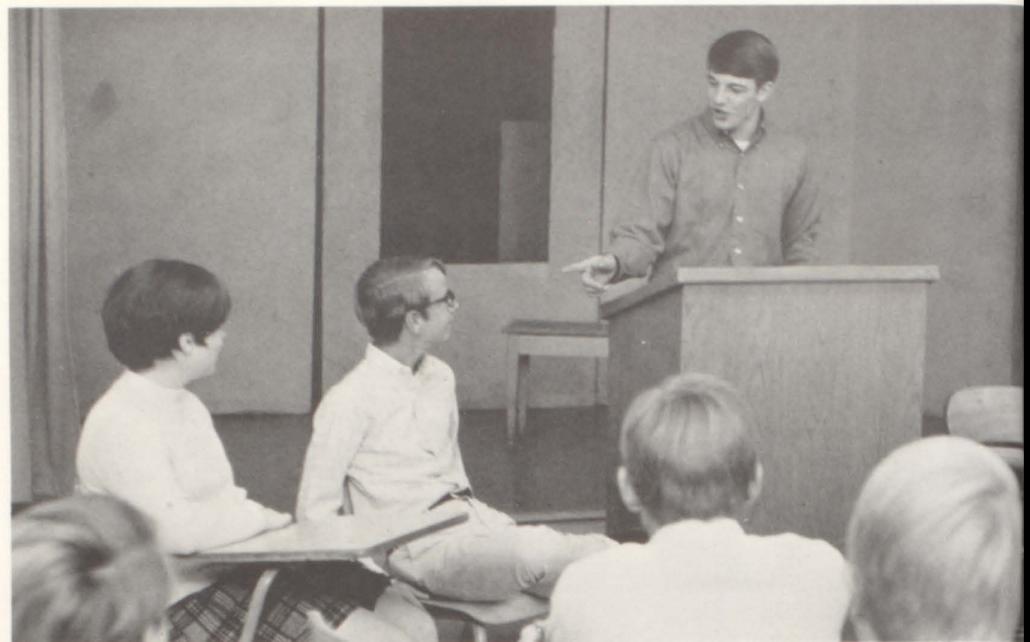

(Upper Left) Cindy Knorek tests a French perfume that Barb Arno is selling in a skit for their second year French class, as both increase their speaking proficiency. (Center Left) Speech is required to give a student poise and ability to communicate with a large number of people. Chuck Watkins puts these skills to use as he gives a speech in Mrs. Franklin's class. (Upper Right) Diane Bishop, Jan Smith, Jeff Hudson, Linda Wehmuller, Paul Natke, Karen Juriea, and Diane Gervais study the Detroit Free Press in order to learn different techniques in newspaper layouts. (Lower Right) Group discussions prove to be quite useful in helping students Phil Natke and Sue Mathie understand the more difficult aspects of a grammar lesson in Latin I. (Center Lower Right) Ron Howard and Melissa Jennings share a brief moment of humor during a break from their study of verb conjugations, in their otherwise serious Latin I class. (Far Lower Right) Sophomore Vicky Peterson listens intently as two other students converse in her Spanish II class.

(Left) French IV students learn and have fun at the same time by playing their favorite game "Phantom," the object of which is to make a new word for each of the letters of a given root word. Each new word must contain the same amount of letters as the original word. Seniors Carolyn Leach, Laura High, Ann Kennedy, and Michele Kozlowicz put forth a joint effort, hoping to make their team the champions. (Upper Right) Stretching a point, Robin Broesamle puzzles over one of the many dialogs she must learn Spanish I. These diálogos use basic vocabulary and simple conversation to introduce the language to the dent. (Upper Center Right) Senior Ann Connors quickly tries to think of the right word to use it as she plays French IV's favorite word game "Phantom." (Far Upper Right) Freshman Rick Bartsch insively examines the results of his German I test. Because the ability to speak is stressed in German he wonders how you say 'Ugh' in German? (Lower Right) Fulfilling one of the requirements of her second year Spanish class, Cindy Brown recites a memorized oral exercise to the delighted amazement of Michele Grant, Sharon Kipp and Linda Lane.

(Upper Left) Debate, an important part of Speech class, teaches the student to reason logically and argue effectively. Juniors Don Dingwall and Paul Allen take the affirmative side in debate on the Vietnam war, while Karen Steppe and Dave Bourke argue the negative. (Lower Left) Terri Webster, Pete Kehoe, Steve Gazouski, Mike Leslie, Doug Magari work with flash cards, enabling them to increase their efficiency in the study of Spanish I. (Upper Right) Keane Maddox and Joan Carpenter find Enriched English a little more intricate than the required English courses. The students are selected on the basis of their grades and their interest in English. (Far Upper Right) "We must learn more about marijuana before we can accurately judge it," says junior Cheryl Briggs in her Enriched Speech class. This informative speech was based on a magazine article, from which students could form their own opinions. (Lower Right) Modern English authors and their works are the basis for studying English Lit. III. Senior Barb Hill "shines" as she finishes off a quiz on the "Enlightenment" period. (Center Right) Miss Fox questions Greg Dryden on his objections to the war in Vietnam, while the "silent majority" relaxes. Greg also expresses his objections by wearing a protest button. Feelings were expressed in many classes at Kimball during the October 15th Moratorium.

The thirty-eight faculty members involved with the English and Language Departments must be extremely versatile in their teaching skills. This is especially true of the Language Departments where the teachers must make their material easily understood and also be able to communicate with the students. In the English Department instructors must have full command of the English language in order to teach their students properly. (Top Left) Heading up a department of over twenty-five faculty members, Mr. Daniel Docks somehow still finds time for his English classes. Since Mr. Docks teaches four classes per day this sometimes becomes a difficult task. (Top Center) Taking time out from endless hours of work with both her English and Latin classes, Mrs. Carol Young shoulders the responsibility of being the Language Department chairman. Mrs. Young has earned the chairmanship since she has given many years of devoted work to Kimball. (Top Right) Mrs. Franklin utilizes her numerous debate skills to captivate the attention of Dan Parsons and Kevin Tracy in English Literature. Kevin and Dave are struggling to comprehend the transcendentalist theories of Emerson and Thoreau.

Social Studies Show Cultures of Different Worlds

The Social Studies department is organized so that students can study the Social Sciences and History.

The Social Sciences use the empirical approach of hypothesis, next critical analysis, then generalization and finally verification. This section includes Sociology, Psychology, Economics, and International Relations.

Information covered in History classes fills in a story of how men have carried on basic human activities in various settings and with different value systems. History, in itself, is a record of past events, organized chronologically, including an explanation of how and why the events occurred.

Before modern times historians thought that knowledge of the past could help in predicting the future. They believed that patterns of such events as war and peace or conquest and defeat, repeat themselves. Believing they could predict the future through the past gave them reason to study history. Modern historians, however, know that the patterns of civilization change according to the circumstances. What then is the reason for studying Social Studies?

"My answer is simple. Besides adding to the basic knowledge of each individual student pertaining to cultural heritage, these subjects serve as springboards to the understanding of issues that face us today. How can we understand the present without a clear comprehension of what has happened in the past. Social Studies courses also aid in the development of inquiry and reasoning skills that can be used in writing, thinking and speaking. These notions can be carried into other areas of study also, thus social studies courses have a dual objective or purpose with regard to content and with regard to practical application.

At Kimball most of the history courses are taken in the freshman and junior years. The more current and social courses are taken in the Senior year.

Freshmen are required to take Modern European History which traces the major political, social, and economical events from the Renaissance to 1900, and the development of Communism. Basic Geography covers one semester. It is a basic course in Geography dealing with maps, climate, industry, natural resources, and land forms.

Twentieth century European History is also a one semester course studying European History, beginning with World War I, to the cold war and new Europe.

Asian History studies the political, social, and economic development from prehistoric times through middle ages.

The semester course, Ancient and Medieval History, traces Western Man's political, social, and economic development from prehistoric times through middle ages.

United States History I and II, both semester courses, are required for all students as they enter their junior year. The courses begin with the American Revolution and cover famous events up to the modern times including the domestic, political, social and economic history of our nation.

Religions of the world are viewed in their historical and cultural settings, in History of Religions, a full year course. It encompasses a survey of the great Eastern and Western Religions, emphasizing the development and impact of these religions on various civilizations. The first semester includes a survey of two modern secular religions, Communism and Fascism. The second semester is devoted to Judaism, Christianity and Islam. Lastly, the course will concentrate on devil worship and witchcraft as religions.

Sociology, one of the most popular Social Studies classes, is a critical analysis of the study of a group dependent upon the individual. A few of the topics discussed are Crime, Marriage, Sex, Juvenile Delinquency and Religion.

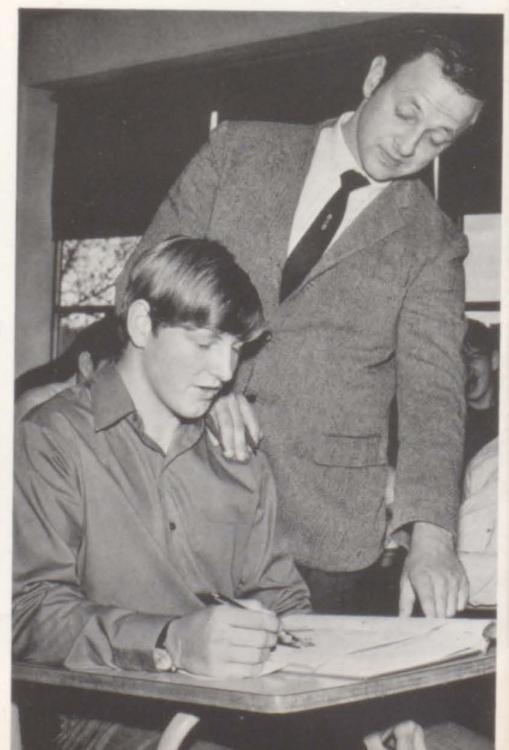

International Relations is a college preparational course that examines among other topics, comparative, foreign governments, the basic ideologies, major world philosophies, diplomatic biographies, regional arrangements, and dialectical materialism.

United Nations is a course that is growing rapidly in popularity. It examines problems facing the U.N. along with those that affect the world. Most of the class time is spent discussing these problems.

Another interesting course, Surveys of Western Civilizations, is a two hour elective covering the cultural history of various nations. It interrelates the arts, philosophy, literature, and social customs.

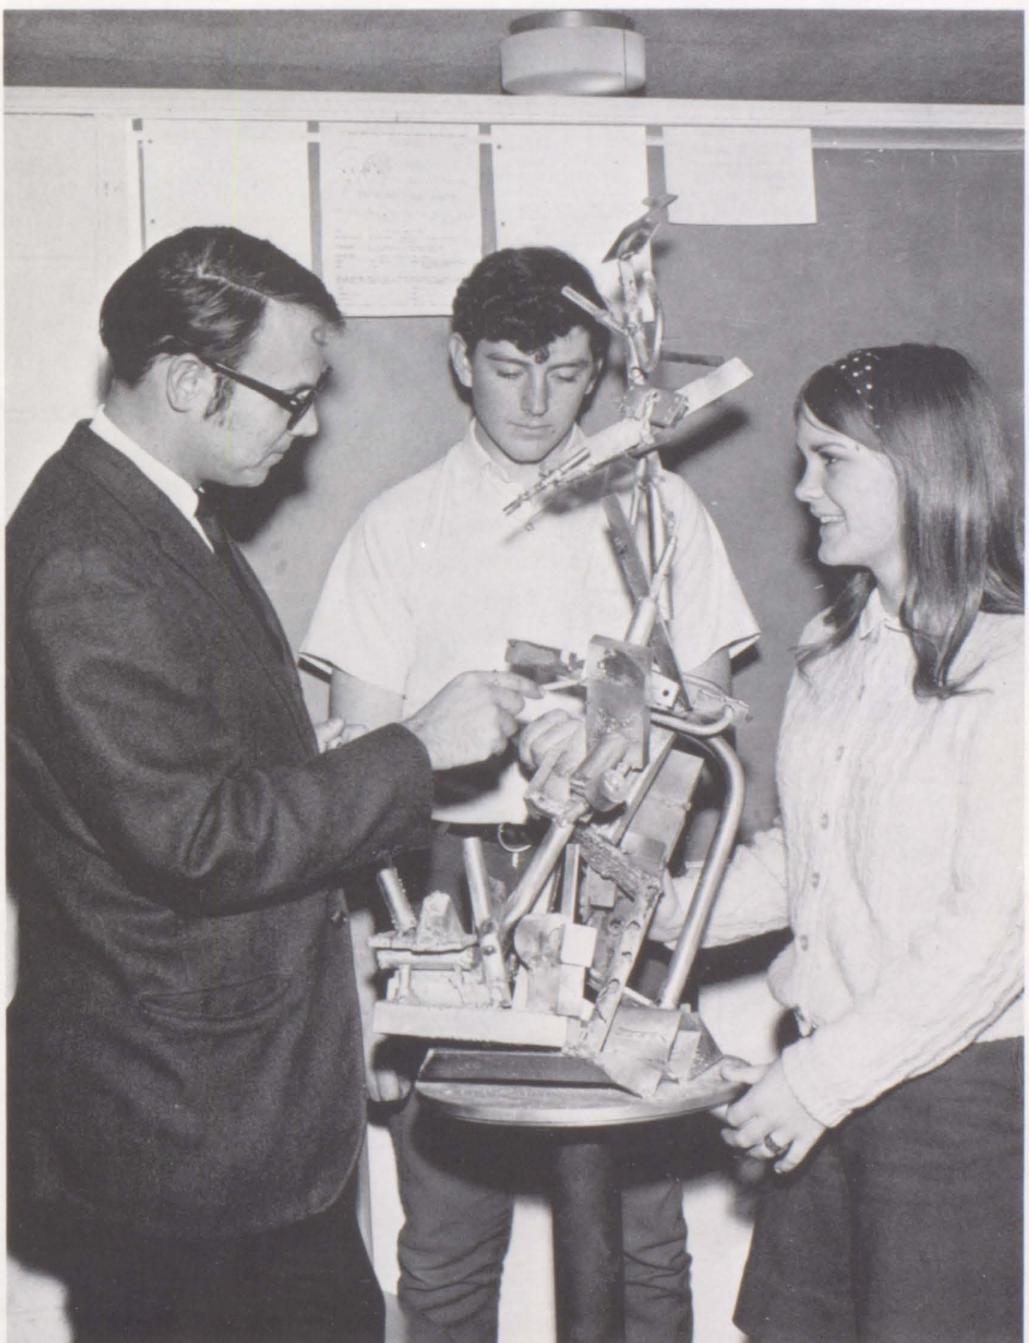

The three main objectives Social Studies teachers try to accomplish are: to develop the student into useful, independent citizens with cooperative attitudes toward society; to develop a set of values consistent with a democratic creed; and to develop the student into a citizen with skills that enable him to separate truth from falsehood and acquire dependable new knowledge.

(Upper Far Left) Joanne Gast looks disbelievingly at Miss O'Leary as she learns of the handicap that the varied American geography placed on the British during the American Revolution. In U.S. History I the finer points of our country's past are taught so the juniors will have a better understanding of why certain events take place. (Upper Center Left) Richard Stevens, stumped by a challenging question in his social studies class, turns to Mr. Mann for an explanation; only to find it was right under his nose in the book. Rich is involved in a combined studies class including English, Social Studies, and Math, more commonly known as ESSM. (Upper Left) Distracted from their train of thought, Judy Sharpe and Sue Potter glance up from their studies to find out what's going on. (Lower Left) Demonstrating a position of concentration, Bev Wilmes gives Miss Schwenke's first hour History of Religions class a better understanding of Yoga. (Upper Right) Debby Garlinghouse cleans up the mess democracy makes. Her government class held a mock election, with candidates from two parties running for president, secretary, parliamentarian and sergeant at arms. (Upper Far Right) Studying France's involvement in the Indo-China War, Jim Ciske draws a map of the country during the 1950's. The project was given to him by Mrs. Ashley for his Asian History class.

(Upper Left) Mr. Meraw stimulates a student into enjoying U.S. Government by his unique charm. This exciting course covers the American Governmental system, emphasizing the Constitution. (Lower Far Left) Freshman Bob Christensen examines the beauty of the Renaissance. Modern European History is not a "bore" when you have Mr. Ashley as a teacher. (Lower Middle Left) Mr. Bush puts forth an effort to express the economy of war to his U.S. History class. Students seem to think that Mr. Bush makes this junior required class more interesting. (Lower Left) Don Insley discovers Mr. Arndt is right. The study of Modern European History helps us to understand the problems of society today. (Upper Right) Every year the Government students hold a mock election in which officers for the individual classes are elected. This election shows how our democratic system works. This year the election was started by Bob Pratt with a blast heard around the school. (Lower Right) Lives, equipment and money are a few of the many things lost in World War I. These along with other facts of the war were graphically brought before a 20th century European class by Mark Ryan, Toni Randolph, Steve Wajcik, Paula Hancock and Ken Braun.

Kimball's Social Studies teachers help the student to understand more fully the world and the people in it. Whether in the study of the French Revolution or the Vietnam War, these teachers strive to be objective in presenting their lessons. (Center Left) Heading these teachers and co-ordinating the activities of all the social studies, Mr. Stuve continues again this year to put his all out effort into providing a well-rounded department. (Center) Pointing out the eastern sector of the Roman Empire to his Survey of Western Civilization class, Mr. Walsh explains the cultural history of the nation. The lecture covers arts, philosophy, literature, and social customs of ancient Rome. (Right) Mr. Barker argues with some of his U.S. History students about the Revolutionary war. Some active students believe the system of government was not changed but basically improved.

Math and Science Classes Combine Old Techniques With New Concepts

Math and Science are appropriately placed together as they are overlapping subjects. Math provides a method of doing problems and science presents practical situations which require the use of these skills. These two major subjects play an important part in our lives whether we are destined for college or a business career. Both subjects offer a variety of courses depending upon the speed at which you learn and the degree of difficulty you want.

Freshmen may choose from three math courses. The basic fundamentals of mathematics are reviewed and enlarged upon in General Math. Stressing drills in the four major operations it includes the study of different number bases, percentages, formulas and some equations. Basic Math is simply General Math at an easier pace. It may delve deeper into some aspects and only touch on others giving a student practice in the basic operations. Algebra I and Honors Algebra I are the more difficult of the freshman Math courses. Algebra I includes a diversified program of Algebraic manipulations, factoring and the graphing of quadratic and linear equations.

The program for sophomores doesn't offer quite as much variety, Geometry and Honors Geometry are essentially the only math courses. They consist of studying proofs, theorems, geometric shapes, similarity, and some constructions. These courses provide an interesting year as well as a very important step towards higher mathematics. Sophomores are also offered Biology, the initial science course in Kimball. Here students study the intricate functions of living organisms from the tiny cell to the complicated human being.

Juniors are given only one choice of mathematics course, Algebra II with the exception of honors students. A prerequisite of a C or better in Algebra I is the only formal requirement. Generally the first semester is spent in an intensified review of Algebra I. Graphing and coordinate systems are emphasized with introductions to log usage and functions. Chemistry is the one science course taken in eleventh grade as part of the college preparatory sequence. A background in Algebra I is necessary. Chemistry is a lab course dealing with the laws and changes of matter.

Steve Lynn, sophomore, points out an easy way of solving "quadratic equations" to Don Insley, Mr. Charney's freshman Algebra pupil. (Upper Center) Algebra I, being a complicated course, takes a considerable amount of concentration. Here Bob Katner pauses to think about the assignment he's working on. (Upper Right) By writing solutions on the board and explaining them to the class, students gain a better understanding of the various methods used to solve problems in Algebra I. Pat Haverstock pauses to check her notes so she will be sure to describe the solution to this problem correctly. (Lower Right) Chemistry involves many complex experiments using a vacuum bell. Here the students watch their teacher, Mr. Meyers, bring the boiling point of benzine down so low that it freezes while it's boiling.

Senior Math is the most advanced mathematics course offered in the 12th grade level. It considers all three previous years of math and relates them to the physical world. This course is designed to give the student knowledge of three dimensional space and trigonometric functions and identities.

General Science is a course drawing from the six physical sciences. It is open to seniors in an attempt to help them appreciate the modern world.

Physics is a lab course in the college preparatory sequence. The topics covered are also discussed in class and in films. Physics students discover the laws of nature and mathematical relationships between these laws.

Senior Science is the most advanced course offered to seniors by invitation only. It is an accelerated course conducted as a seminar, examining three previous years of study through independent research by the students.

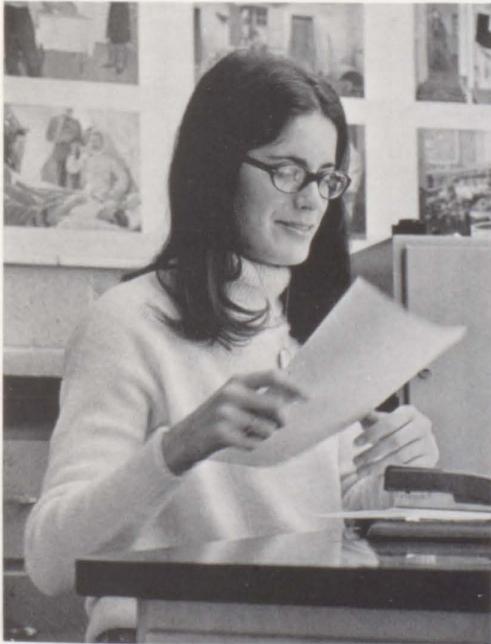

Perhaps now it is easier to see how our fine science and math programs take in a variety of important and interesting subjects.

(Upper Left) Marcee Grunow "curves" her attention to Mr. Heald as he performs an experiment to demonstrate the water displacement method of collecting gases. (Center Left) Geometry, the study of angles and triangles can also deal with the science of probability. Karen Steppe and Art Kowalski demonstrate the probability board. The slope of the board determines where the marble will go. (Lower Left) Sue Mix measures her Basic Math ability in Mr. Clark's fourth hour class, a course designed for those pursuing a business career. (Lower Center Left) Experiments take up a good share of class time for senior science students. Here Ray Fales cleans out a test tube in preparation for another experiment. (Lower Center Right) The skills of addition and subtraction are taught in an unusual manner through use of the abacus. Bill Sanviete demonstrates his ability to add on this ancient Chinese instrument. (Lower Right) Exchange students Uta Schnuebbe and Tosh Fukuyama go over the Michigan Math Test. The preliminary test was given in the Kimball cafeteria in October. Tosh scored well and was invited to the finals.

(Upper Left) Learning how to construct a transversal on a model parallelogram proves to be an interesting change from the routine of Geometry. Linda Moran seems especially interested in the model which Chuck Rymal is demonstrating to the class. (Center Left) All formulas must balance out in Chemistry. Pictured is a balance used to obtain weights of small objects in grams. The instrument is accurate to a hundredth of a gram. The metric system is used in Chemistry because it is easier to convert to different units then it is using the English system. (Upper Center Right) A full understanding of the problems in Geometry can only be gained by listening and participating in class. Here Eric Kaeimole, Dave Clement, and Dave Hunt listen intently while Mr. Jacobson explains their lesson. (Upper Far Right) Since Algebra I consists of many equations, it has to be taught with great skill. Here Mr. Shultheiss pauses briefly to see that his class is still with him. (Center Far Right) The easiest way to figure out linear equations is to plot them on a graph. Here Richard Woodward solves his equation in Mr. Pedrick's Algebra I class on the graph he has drawn on the board. (Lower Center Right) Chemistry students are called on to make a variety of tests in an attempt to identify further the chemicals they are working with. Cheri Sadler is using litmus paper to determine whether the chemical is an acid or a base. (Lower Far Right) Peggy Newman, Senior Science student, discovers the make-up of certain elements in Mr. Heald's class. Biology, Chemistry, and Physics are subjects needed before a student can enroll in this advanced science course.

(Left) Karen Wright and Carolyn Bogush learn the skill of using a microscope in their first hour biology class. Here they look at a piece of news print suspended in water in order to study the method with which the letters were imprinted into the paper. (Upper Right) Senior Science gives some selected seniors a chance to explore in more depth the subjects touched on in previous science classes. Val Pettys peels a tomato before she extracts the pigment and separates it into its various colors. (Lower Right) Tom Kirkman draws water through a pipette in Senior Science. This tool measures matter in millimeters, a measure used in science, for molecular experiments. (Lower Cen'er Right) A few extra minutes in her Algebra I class are put to good use by Barb Wolinski, as she begins Mr. Charney's assignment on factoring whole numbers. (Lower Far Right) Personal help is sometimes needed when working proofs in Geometry. Here Mr. Booker helps Lynn Swanson with her angle theorems.

(Upper Left) Mr. Robert Booker is one of the most qualified math teachers Kimball has. He can communicate with his students and does not continue until he is sure everyone understands. Since math is one of the hardest subjects taught, for some students, it seems only natural for him to be the department head. (Center Left) As head of the science department, Mr. Ronald Schmidt has many responsibilities. He must organize and order all materials needed by the science department used to perform their experiments. As a teacher Mr. Schmidt teaches a straight course of Physics, the most advanced science course available at Kimball. (Center) Chemistry involves many experiments using two or more gases. Mr. Heald demonstrates to Joan Carpenter and Mark Bisso the water displacement method of collecting hydrogen gas for use in a chemical system. (Center Right) General Math involves the use of basic mathematical skills, such as numbers with different bases, percentages, solving equations, and the use of fractions. Students in Mr. Zulch's 4th hour class listen attentively as Mr. Schott, a student teacher from Wayne State, demonstrates the addition and multiplication of fractions.

For students who do not necessarily wish to go on to college, there are many classes that prepare them in trades for the future.

Those who wish to go into the business world, have a choice between several excellent courses. General Business, including an introduction to typing and shorthand, is offered to freshmen.

As a sophomore a student can take Typing I, which is a prerequisite to Typing II and Shorthand.

In his junior year the variety of courses is broadened. Shorthand I, concentrates on the basic skills of making correct and legible notes. Typing II, builds skills in speed and accuracy as a continuation of Typing I. The buying and selling of merchandise is covered in Retailing I.

Fourth year business courses become more complicated and precise. Retailing II students are given the chance to learn through experience as they try their hand at running the supply store. Bookkeeping II and Shorthand II are advanced continuations of the previous year. Office Machines and Model Office better orientate the students with an office atmosphere.

Girls who wish to acquire knowledge that will help them later in married life often look to the Home Economics courses.

(Upper Left) Retailing II students make window-shopping easier with the aid of the glass showcase. (Upper Center) Dorothy Geeck and Jeanette Dear check incoming boxes of candy that the retailing students sold. The candy sale, organized by the Goodfellows, was used as an opportunity to raise money for Christmas gifts for needy families. (Upper Right) Michele Wiles practices drills for Typing II on an electric machine. (Lower Right) Architectural drawing student, Dave Press, utilizes his abilities as he draws up a blueprint design of a house.

A freshman may start out with General Homemaking which includes sessions in cooking and sewing.

Courses such as Child Development, Foods I and II, and Clothing I and II are offered to sophomores. Child Development instructs the students on various methods used in raising a child. In Clothing I and II the basics of sewing are taught as each person in the class is required to turn in a project every six weeks. Foods I, a semester course; deals mainly with meal planning and basic food preparation.

Also a semester course, Foods II goes into more depth, with the study of advanced food preparation and preservation.

Home Economics courses offered in the junior year are even more advanced and detailed. Clothing may be taken only by the finest seamstresses in the school to prepare them for a professional career. Foods III students learn the most advanced techniques of planning and preparing unique dishes. They may also further their knowledge by taking Vocational Foods and obtaining actual experience in Royal Oak junior high schools' cafeterias.

Family Living is a great help to senior girls in understanding the responsibility of married life. Housing, the study of line, color, and design in interior decoration, also help students plan convenient and economical layouts for their future homes.

Students seeking a trade in the industrial line, choose courses in the Industrial Arts program.

Freshmen may take General Metals, Woodshop, Mechanical Drawing, or Graphic Arts. In General Metals, exploratory work acquaints boys with various machines and their use. Woodshop also offers basic instruction in the use of tools and machines. Teaching the fundamentals of craftsmanship, Mechanical Drawing places great emphasis upon accuracy, detail, and perfection in all projects. Graphic Arts deal primarily with acquainting the student with the various styles and types of print.

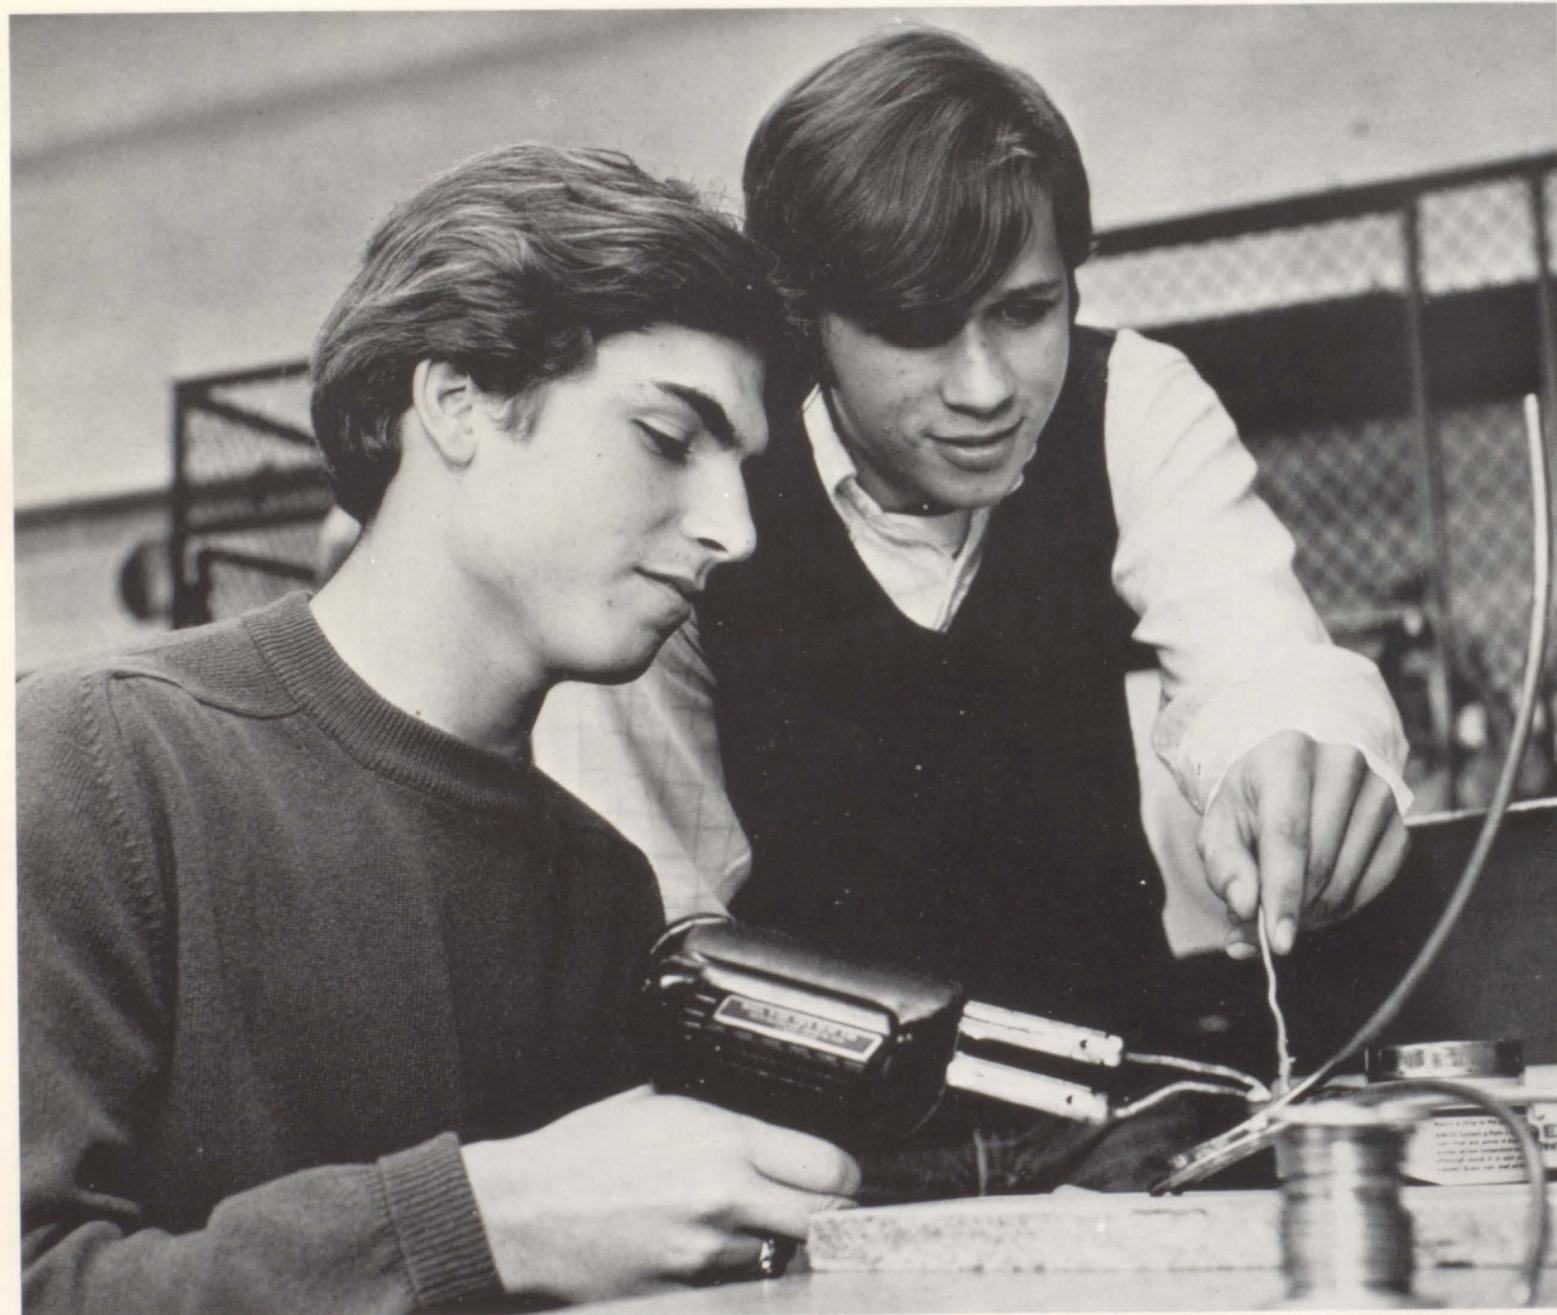

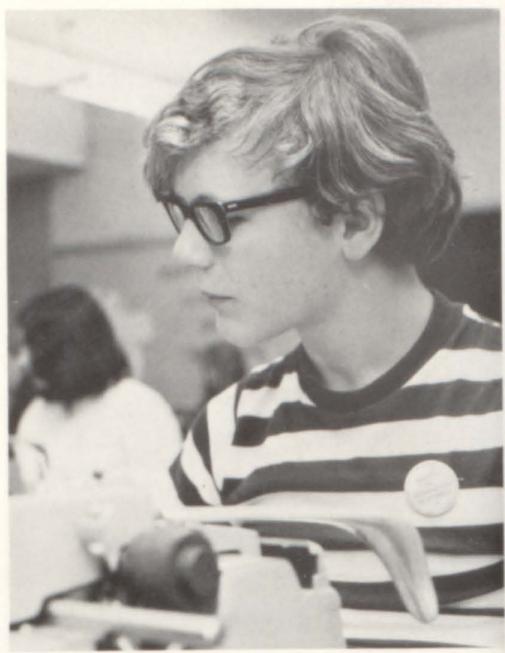

Courses such as Metal Crafts, Shop Fundamentals, Machine Drawing, Architectural Drawing, Auto Shop, Machine Shop, and Advanced Woodshop are offered to sophomores. Metal crafts, a semester course, deals with personal use and stresses creative design. Shop Fundamentals is a math orientated course which includes a review of Algebra and Geometry, with new lessons in Trigonometry.

With Mechanical Drawing as a prerequisite simple machines and parts are drawn by students in Machine Drawing. Architectural drawing stresses the development of creative designs and covers the basics needed to pursue such a career. With two days a week in class and three days a week in the shop, Auto Shop allows the boys to adequately repair their own cars while they learn. Basic machine work is taught in Machine Shop, especially the use of a drill press, a lathe sharpener, a milling machine, and a surface grinder. Advanced Woodshop is primarily for those interested in careers in furniture design.

Vocational Auto Shop II offers juniors actual job work and exploration into new areas of problem repairs. Advanced Graphics can be taken by those who have one year of experience, to learn offset and letter press writing.

As you can realize, there are many different fields you can go into if your plans don't include college. Students need to be given the chance and the background to enter one of these fields and Kimball provides this opportunity.

Kimball Knights Become Interested in Activities Throughout the Year

A sparkle in a girl's eyes, a tear, a cry of joy, a winning team, a majestic parade and an air of suspense, these were the components of the 1969-70 Homecoming. One small cherub faced girl emerges from the tumult, Miss Pat Andux, homecoming queen for the season. Along with her was her court; Barb Hartrick, Barb Hill, Patti Lane, and Joni Miller. Involved in the excitement, were the finishing touches to club, homeroom and class floats. The senior class won the float competition with their version of "Mutiny on the Berkeley."

This year was the dawning of new clubs at Kimball. One, the Kimball Christian Club, formed to create a Christian attitude toward life. Another, the 500 Mile Club for those boys who like the feeling of running like antelopes across a vast distance.

A foreign accent was revived again this year with the combining of the Language clubs. One of their most prominent projects for the beginning of the year was the Language Club float for homecoming.

The Modern Dance Club holding clinics in the fall followed by tryout practices once a week, and then began daily practicing for the modern dance show in May.

Throughout the school year excited girls learn the basic movements and swimming styles to use in the annual synchronized swim show in May. The Naiads go into water ballet competition with other S.M.A. schools for all S.M.A. honors.

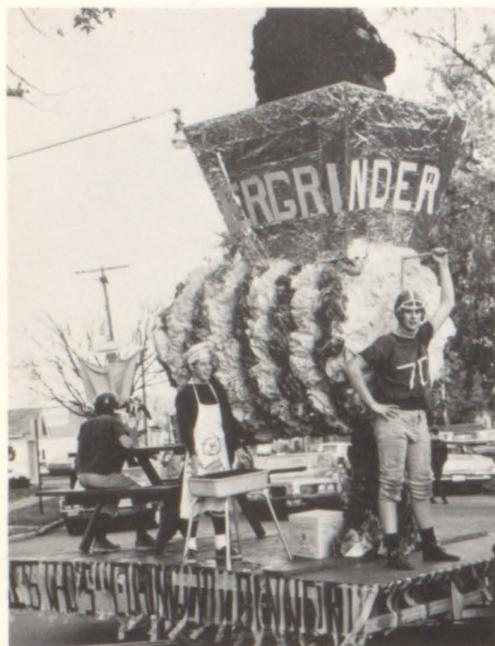

Juniors that have maintained a "C" average may be accepted into the Future Teachers Association to introduce students to the teaching profession. The club sponsors a cadet teaching program.

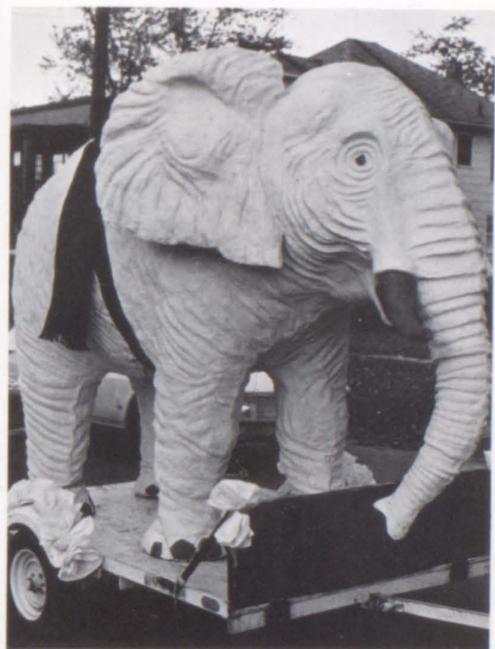

Thespians, sponsoring two annual plays, is open to students interested in theartics.

The arrows of Apollo and Artimus, the greek god and goddess of hunting and conservation of wildlife, have created the spirit of adventure for two clubs, the Conservation Club for junior and senior boys, and DOA for junior and senior girls.

Throughout the year, it is nearly impossible for any student not to become interested in the clubs and activities, from being a star in the school play to hours of work in swimming. All opportunities are available at Kimball High School.

(Upper Left) The first nationwide Moratorium on October 15, brought student demonstrators from all over the area to Memorial Park to protest against the war in Vietnam. (Upper Right) Rod Foist displays his unique poetic abilities during the conservation club initiation. All boys participating were requested to wear a poem on their shirts and to carry a plant. (Upper Center Right) Labeled the best pep assembly in five years by several teachers, the 1969 Kimball Dendero pep assembly was full of spirit. Junior Sue Grant proudly shows her enthusiasm by sporting a letter sweater for blue and gold day. The assembly, put on by the cheerleaders, featured a cheering contest between clubs, several skits, player introductions, and served as a finale to Spirit Week, and activity to raise spirit for the Kimball-Dendero football game. (Upper Right) Feeling the tension in the air, Robin Brooks, concentrates on her next event in the girls' SMA swim meet. Robin was co-captain with Karen McNaughton this season and proved to be one of the most valuable assets to the team, barely being edged out by Patti Finn of Seaholm in the 100 meter individual medley. In their second year, the girls' swim team placed third in the SMA swim meet. (Center Left) Anxious seniors wait for their turn to try to defeat the juniors in the Powder Puff football game. Front Row Left to Right: Cheri Sadler, Darlene Theisen, Denise Fennell, Donna Glover, Pat Andux, Laraine Hainer. Second Row: Rhonda Holloway, Cheryl Pruden, Debbie Wagner, Barb Laurie, Robin Gonda. Background: Jan Nims, Karen Giradot, and Kathy Gitzen. (Lower Right) Smash the Eagles! The senior class sponsored a car bash to create the spirit needed to bring a victory against the Ferndale Eagle. Their efforts were also made profitable by charging a quarter for two bashes.

Physical Education, an Experience That One Never Forgets, Develops Character

Physical education, a reflection of aching muscles, and locker room jokes, teaches students to work with others and at the same time it develops their co-ordination.

The boys begin the year by learning the basic skills and knowledge needed to participate in football, cross country and speedball.

One of these sports, speedball, is a mixture of football and soccer. How could any boy ever forget those immortal pass patterns, zig in, zig out, and the sideline that were drilled into their heads during the football session of gym.

Cross country is a breathtaking experience, which most find out early while running the mile and the 100 yd. dash. Usually after this, teams are chosen and inter-class competition in these different sports begins.

While the boys are going through vigorous training, the girls are struggling through field hockey, golf, tennis, flag football, and archery.

One of the sports, field hockey, has rules similar to those of ice hockey. Golf is another sport that is enjoyed by the girls, where a miniature course is set up and practice balls are used.

As the balmy fall weather changes to crisp, windy days, the gym classes move inside. Basketball, wrestling, and line soccer are a few indoor activities, in which the boys participate.

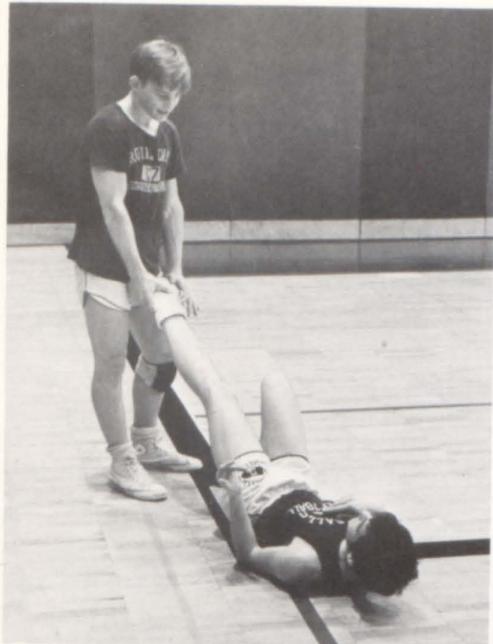

The girls are involved in some indoor games such as ping pong, shuffleboard, badminton, and bowling. A new addition to the girls winter program is ice skating where the girls travel across Lexington to Warden Ice Rink. The skaters are taught by a single instructor who remains at the ice rink all day. After the snow melts, the spring gym classes go outdoors. They then enjoy all the same activities as they did in the fall with the addition of softball.

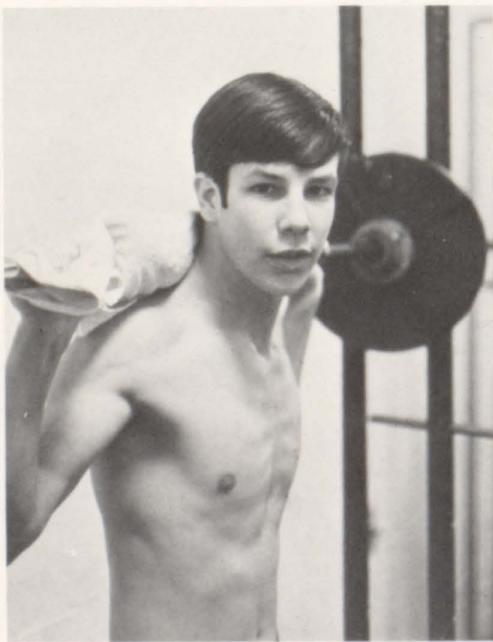

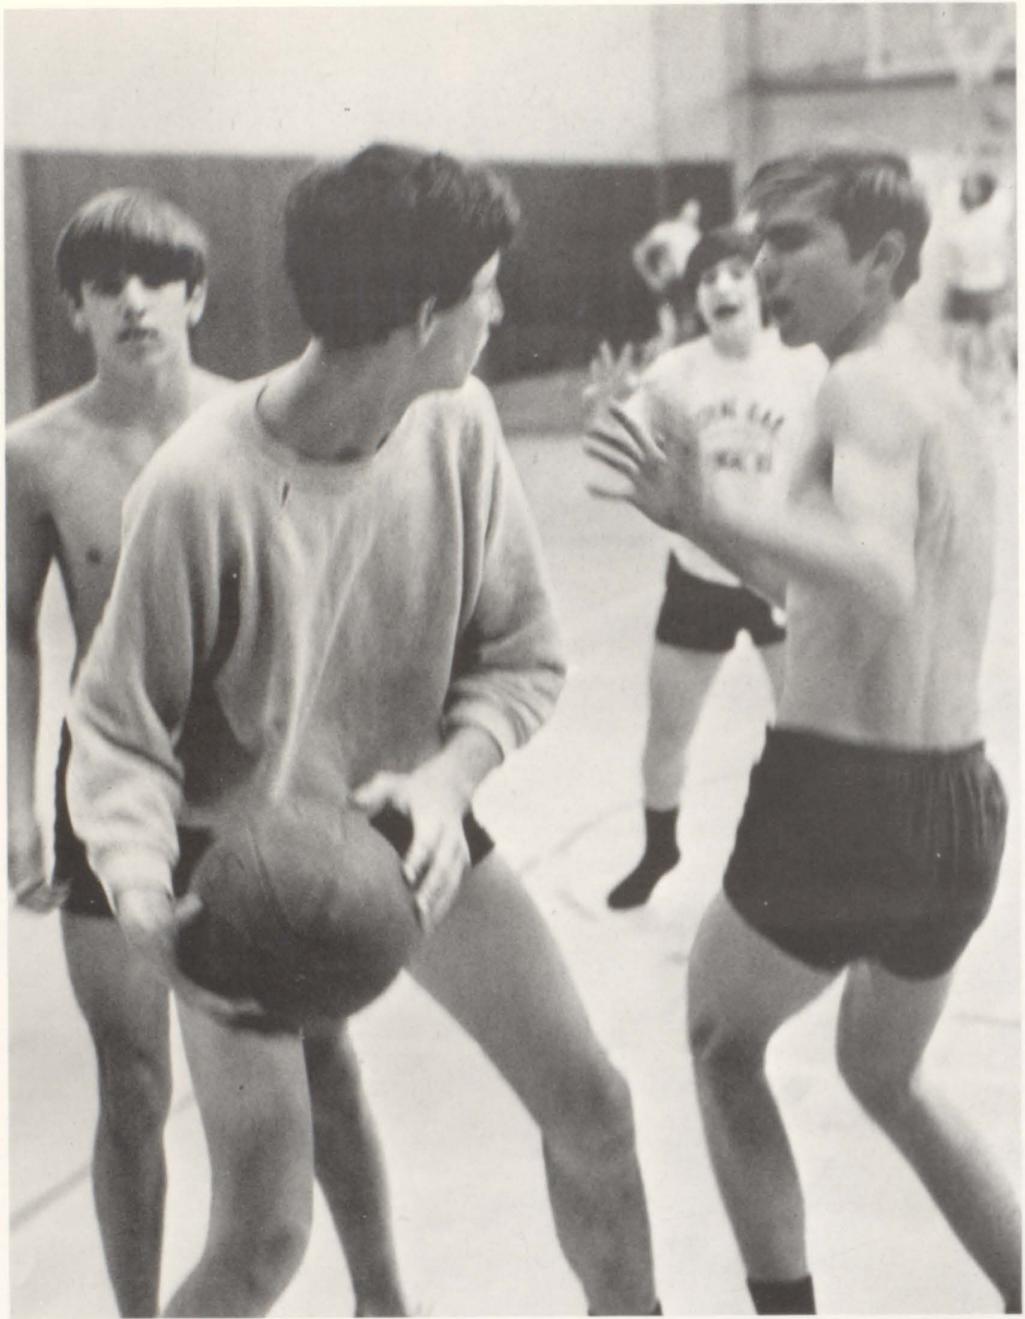

The boys go through a short co-ordinating course before participating in the track events such as the high jump, relays, long distance races, and sprints. This is finalized by a track meet between the different classes. For the first time at Kimball the boys not only the girls will play golf.

Swimming puts in as a six week course is a special phase of physical education. Three major strokes; freestyle, backstroke, and breaststroke are taught.

The second special class, Health, is also taught for six weeks, in which the students learn the function of the human body and good mental and physical health habits.

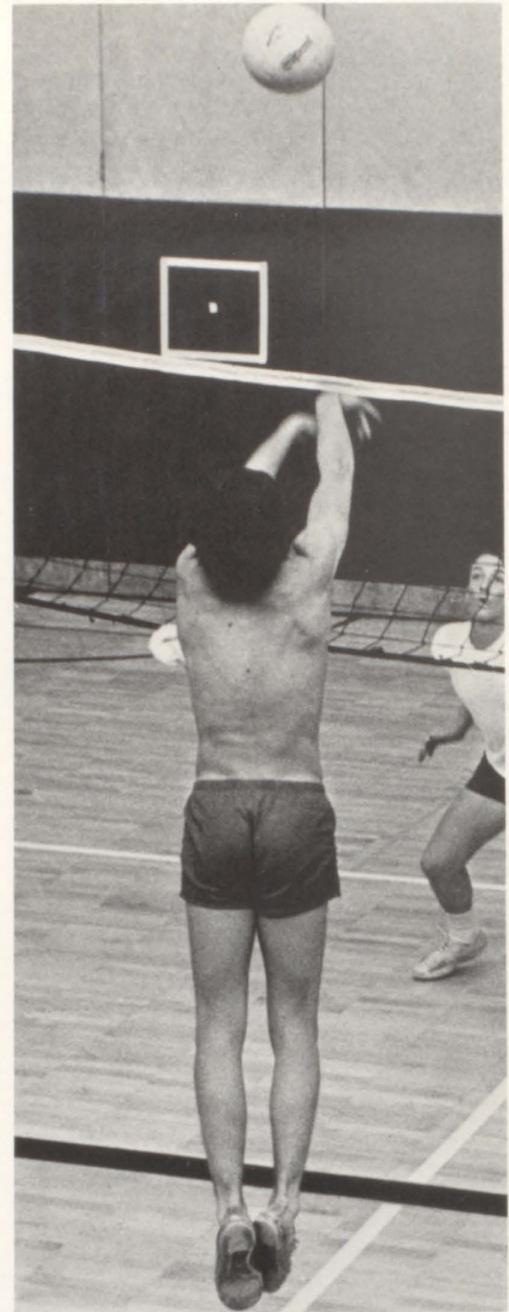

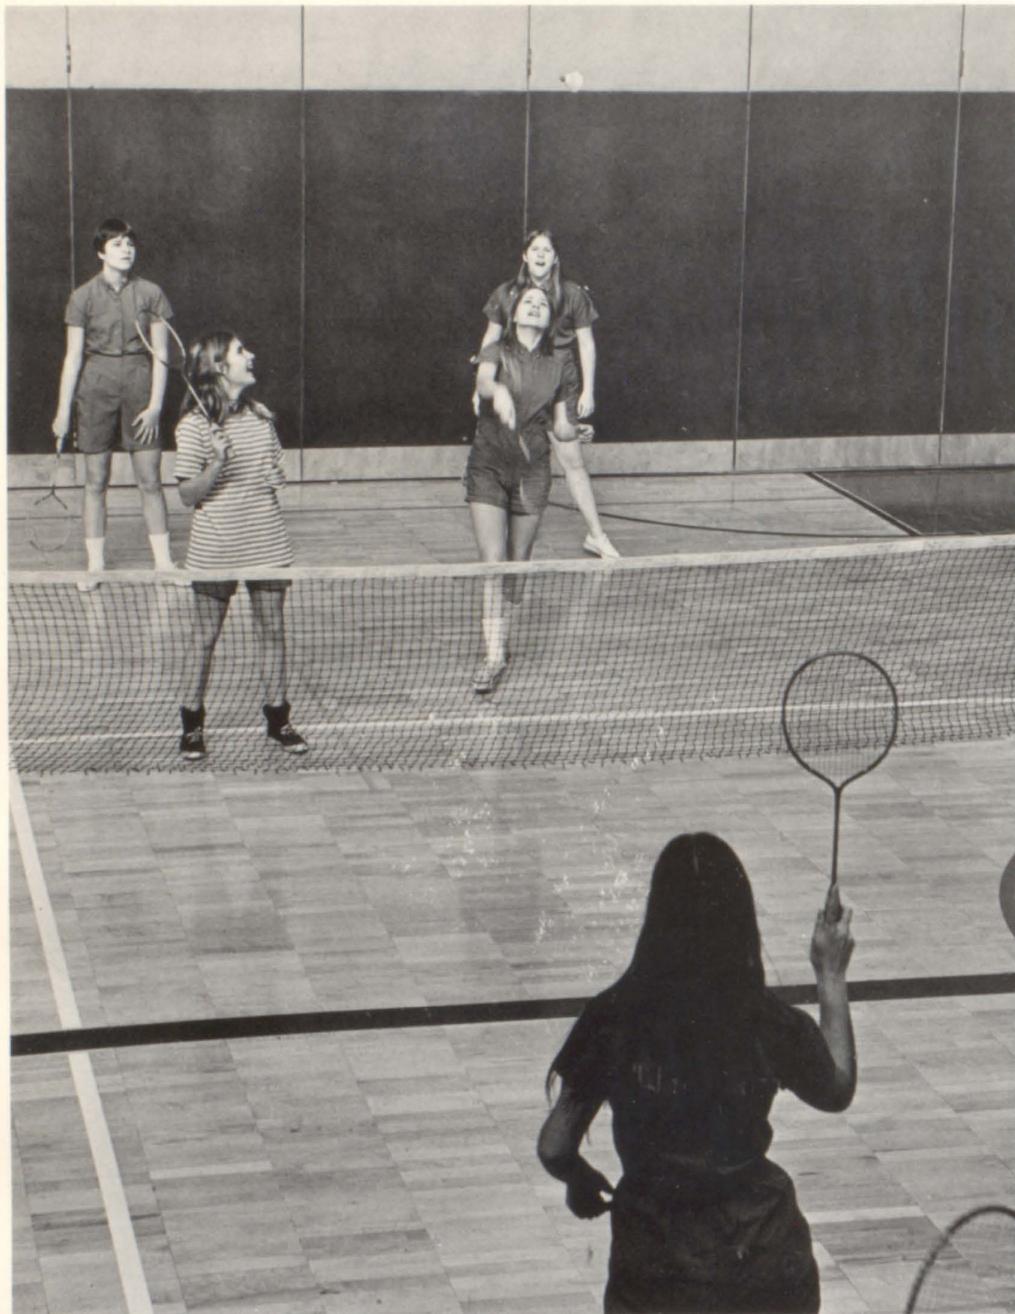

If you ask anyone who has been through physical education; they will undoubtedly say it's one experience they'll never forget.

(Upper Left) Each spring the girls' education classes engage in numerous types of outdoor team competition. One of the favorites is softball. Denise Alasin skillfully delivers the ball to one of her opponents. (Upper Right) Ann Shen appears to be the center of attraction as she performs a Spread Eagle jump on the trampoline in her sophomore gym class. (Lower Left) Mr. Bob Weber, head wrestling coach, is also head of the Physical Education department. One of his many duties as head is setting up the gym schedules for a six hour day. In addition, Mr. Weber has many classes himself.

Kimball Students Show Exceptional Skill and Talent in Music and Art

Kimball's Music Department, made up of over 600 students, is one of the largest in the state. Mr. Keith Lancaster, director of the Boy's Glee Club, A Cappella Choir, and the Madrigal Singers, puts hours of work into both the Christmas and Spring Concerts as well as many other functions that the choir participates in. The Christmas season, by far the busiest, keeps the 84 members pretty well occupied.

Mrs. Denzil Balmer, director of the Girls' Choir and Glee Club, has organized a select group of 8 members from the Girls' Choir, Doudecema, which is similar to the Madrigal Singers. Madrigals is a group of 16 boys and girls from the A Cappella Choir, chosen on the basis of blend, pitch, and timing, since they perform without a director.

In the Instrumental Dept., Mr. Patrick Pugh leads three of the Kimball bands. The Varsity Band, which is made up of freshmen, gives the younger performers a taste of complex pieces and introduces them to an audience. The Concert Band is open to both sophomores and juniors and it performs many times throughout the year. The most accomplished band, Symphony, is made up of Seniors and some of the best juniors. The Pep Band, which one hears at football games and pep rallies, is comprised of first and second chair brass and percussion musicians who devote their time before and after school to practice. Kimball's Marching Band, directed by Mr. Wayne Richardson, is a combination of the Concert and Symphony Bands.

The list doesn't stop here, for Kimball's Orchestra, led by Carl Picklo, proved to be in excellent form this year. The Concert and Symphony Orchestras play at the annual Christmas and Symphony Concerts as well as at the All-City Festival.

Baroque Strings, an extra-curricular activity similar to Madrigals, play at the annual holiday concerts, specializing in chamber music. The hard work they put into their music clearly shows up at their concerts.

All points viewed, it is evident Kimball's Music Department is a great asset to its name.

The staff of the Kimball Art Department consists of Mrs. Sturdevant, Mr. Micklia, Mr. Mann, and Mr. Bullock, who teach the different subjects offered, ranging from Art I which is a basic course for those students who just want the fundamental in art, to Advanced Art Select, which is a course designed for the student who shows an exceptional ability and interest in art, and who are considering a career in art.

Kimball's art students participated in various art exhibits throughout the year, and also displayed their talents and projects in different showcases during the school year.

Communication Media Help Students Voice Their Thoughts and Ideas

A society or group of people are not civilized or cultured without a patterned form of communication. The students of Kimball High School not only communicate with a spoken language between each other but also outside of the normal school day with many activities.

Some organized patterns of communication are developed in many ways from debating a proposed issue to editing and writing a year book. The varsity debate team has five members, these five students go to different schools and places of organization to argue or debate a proposed question. They have one main subject in which they debate the whole year. With hard work and understanding each member finishes the year with a better outlook of not only himself and his other team mates but of other people he has confronted.

Through a specialized radio station the members of WOAK can get the experience of not only speaking but gaining the confidence of a good speaker. To become a member, Radio Speech is offered. This class is open to all sophomores, juniors, and seniors who would like to speak on the air. The staff of WOAK broadcasts all events from the bi-annual play to the scores of the latest football or baseball game. Being on the staff of WOAK is not all work, there is a lot of fun in speaking which is also beneficial for the student.

The Herald staff which publishes the newspapers every month is another way Kimball students communicate within the campus and out of it. In the Herald there are articles which cover all school events such as football games, the moratorium programs, and clubs. There are also sections which give the students not on the staff an opportunity to voice their opinion in print.

The Lancer staff is the sole producers of the yearbook. Without the volunteers of Juniors and Seniors it would not be possible to have a yearbook. All members of the staff are assigned a certain section of the book. For each section pictures, cutlines, and copy must be printed and written. Throughout the year there are many deadlines where the staff must get a certain section of the book into the publisher. Each deadline must be met to insure that the book will be ready for distribution in June.

Organized communication would not be possible unless there was some type of government. Here, there is a student government, Roundtable, which is the voice of the students. There are six representatives from each class who meet every morning in the teachers' cafeteria. At each meeting, Eric Geinheimer presides over the representatives who discuss and try to solve the problems of the school. They also discuss and plan new improvements for the student body. For example an open campus policy was sought and money for the foreign exchange student program was raised.

Once a month there is a yeoman meeting where a representative from each homeroom meets with Roundtable. It is here they find out what each homeroom thinks about the established policies.

Before you entered Kimball as a freshman you were assigned a councilor alphabetically, which you will have for years. He will help you and help you choose the classes that are right for you.

There are ten councilors located in offices throughout the school. Their job is not only to discuss your grades and schedule you for the following year but also to give you a better understanding of life after graduation.

The Board of Education's responsibility is to carry out the policies and procedures of the South Oakland County School District. It gives responsibility to the principal of each school in Royal Oak. Jack Stephan, our principal, has been charged with the duty. He works with Mr. Malcom Armstrong, the associate principal. He governs the student body so that the procedures of the school are carried out according to the Board. Mr. James Cameron and Mr. James Glick assistant principals, responsibilities are to establish policies, develop standard of curriculum and coordinate schedules.

All phases of high school life have different ways of communicating. All teachers have different ways of getting their point across to the student. In order for a person to enjoy high school he must first respect the ways of others. By becoming an active member in school activities and groups he will earn that even though people are different they can get along by a common way of communicating. And in order for organization and advancement there must be tolerance and respect achieved only by respecting each other's ways.

(Center Right) Expressing his point of view, Eric Genheimer, first junior president of Roundtable, tells the Knights his strategy in securing an open lunch hour policy. This was the main objective for Roundtable this year. Representatives went to their respective homerooms with petitions for the students' parents to sign on the open campus policy. When returned, the petitions would secure a plan for a two-week trial period to be used at the students' discretion during lunch hours.

NUMBER ONE! Yes, for the first time in football history, Kimball was the top team in the state. Even though it was a brief lodging, it climaxed a fantastic season, which included eight straight wins, the supreme victory, an SMA title and a number four state ranking.

Seven Jim Cole to Tom Brown touchdown aerials proved to be the decisive factor as Kimball rolled to victories in its first four games. An impressive 34-6 rout of a highly rated Detroit team, highlighted this span.

With both Ferndale and Kimball highly rated, the next game was billed the "game of the year". In a bath of mud, both teams played scoreless until Rick Campbell's brilliant jaunt of thirty yards for the game's lone touchdown. An inspired defense, led by the superb play of Greg Briggs, was invincible.

The remainder of the season was a breeze as the Knights captured the SMA crown at Southfield and virtually overpowered all foes. Then Dondero invaded and ruined Kimball's dream of a state championship.

Many Knights received high acclamation, as eight players were named All-SMA and ten others honorable mention. Besides All-State end Tom Brown and All-Oakland County halfback Rick Campbell, they included Jim Swanson, Jay Smith, Al Cirilli, Bill Spalding, Greg Briggs and Steve Hebold.

(Upper Right) With a quiver in his voice, John Shephard, Hazel Park quarterback, whispers his signals prior to being engulfed by the destructive Kimball defense. The Kimball defense yielded a mere sixty-four points throughout the season, highlighted by a superb shutout performance against an explosive Ferndale team. The defense consisted of Tom Brown (82), Larry Kennedy (74), Phil Weaver (54), Jay Smith (62), Tony Filippis (65), Greg Briggs (60), Frank Marks (44), and Larry Lukitch (34). Not shown are Steve Hebold, Rich Chutorash and injured Paul Mann. (Lower Left) End Tom Brown appears to let the ball slip through his fingers, however, a great recovery secured a long gain for Kimball. Virtually everyone's All-Stater, Brown performed exceptionally in all aspects of the game. Besides possessing a fantastic pair of hands with eight touchdown receptions, he opened many fine holes, while also playing top-notch defense. (Lower Right) Phil Ceeley exhaustedly receives his placard from Tom Lang, as he crosses the finish line with his customary first place.

"They were a great bunch of boys, who were willing to work hard and determined to win," said Coach Paul Temerian in analyzing the team's success.

The J.V. football team should supply capable help next year on the basis of their fine 8-0 season, in which they outscored their opponents.

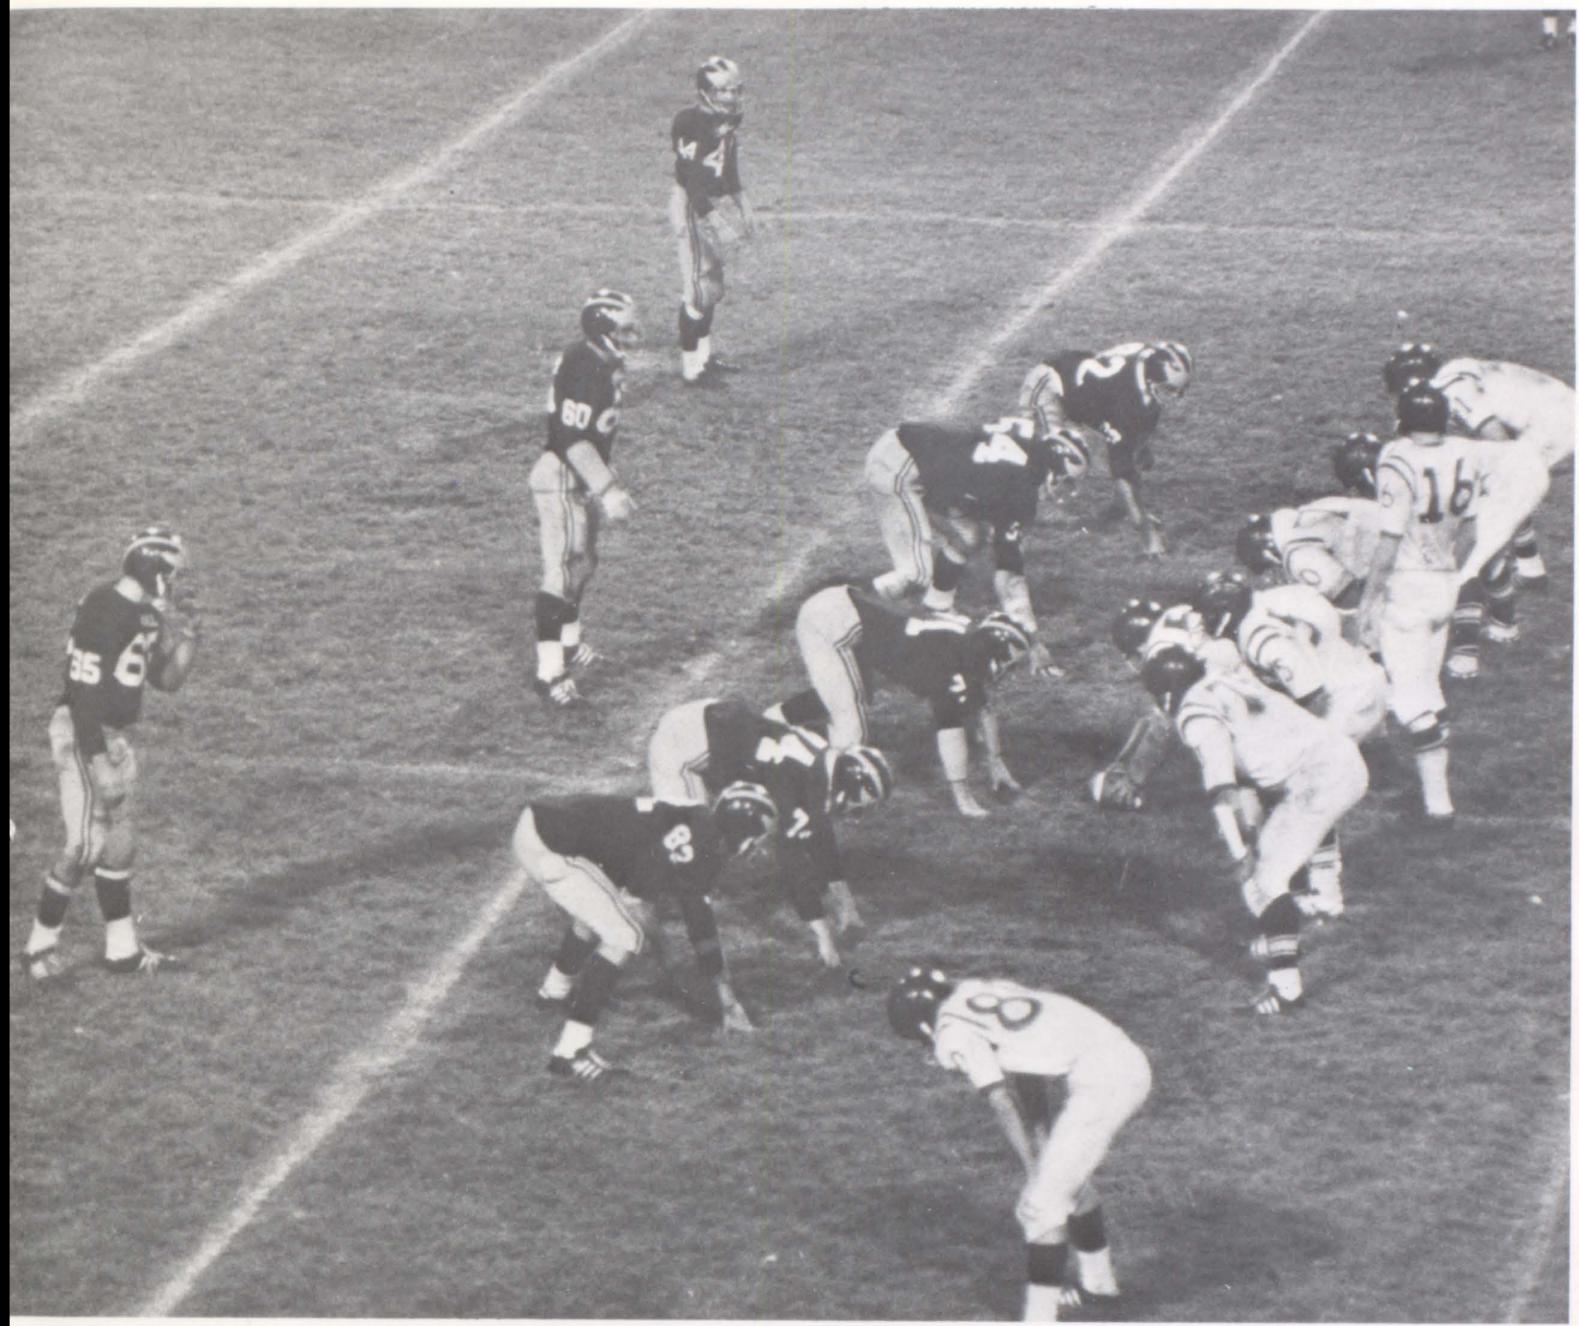

As is true every year, the 1969 Cross Country Team finished with another fine season. Under the tutoring of Mr. Zulch, the Knights had an overall record of 3-5-1. However, a tie for first in the SMA Meet enabled Kimball to capture third place in the standings.

At the Regionals, the harriers teamed together for a second place tie, sending them to the State meet. Star runner Phil Ceeley led the charge, as he captured fourth place individually. At the State Meet, Kimball finished thirteenth, high among the state's best.

There were many fine runners on the team headed by Phil Ceeley. An All-Oakland selection, Ceeley missed All-State distinction by one second. Sophomore Rick Keirn and seniors Rick Borucki and Mark Roby supplied strong support. Scott Huber, Rick Bergdahl and Bob MacMillan rounded out the squad.

The varsity cheerleaders, under the supervision of Miss Underwood, added another trophy to their collection with a high rating at Camps All-America. Jan MacDonald captained the varsity, while Beth Forier headed the J.V. Squad. Donna Johnson led the newly-formed cheer leaders designated to create spirit at swimming meets.

(Upper Center Left) Exerting any remaining strength they possess, Mark Roby and Scott Huber lunge toward the finish lines in hope of cutting off valuable seconds from their time. (Upper Left) With a look of determination on his face, Paul Opyde streaks past a Roseville runner with teammate Tom Lootens coming up fast. (Lower Left) All-Oakland County halfback Rick Campbell views the situation, prior to scampering to a thirty-one yard gain. Clutch is the best term to describe his value to the team. Whenever the big yard was needed Campbell supplied. He possessed what is referred to as "a smell for the end zone." This fact is verified by his fourteen touchdowns, which resulted from 831 yards on the ground and 152 yards through the air. His sharp ball-handling prevented many unnecessary turnovers. (Center Right) With halfback Rick Campbell on the receiving end, senior quarterback Jim Cole fires his third scoring aerial in Kimball's 28-14 triumph over Hazel Park. Cole performed excellently all year, tossing a total of 12 touchdown passes. (Lower Right) Looking upfield to survey the oncoming enemy, junior Bill Turkington maneuvers his way past a Dondero lineman, downed by All-Area tackle Jim Swanson (72). S.M.A. Meet		second place

Even though the 1970 basketball team recorded a strong 14-6 mark, the season was somewhat disappointing. As a result of losses twice to both Ferndale and Seaholm, Kimball finished third in the SMA with a mark of 5-5.

Kimball had little trouble with most foes, but lost squeakers to Seaholm and Ferndale. Steve Hebold, nevertheless, played great, scoring 27 points against Ferndale. In the second round, the Knights lost a frantic game with Seaholm and were defeated by Ferndale, knocking them out of the SMA race.

The highest scoring team ever at Kimball, the Knights possessed numerous stars. An all-area forward, Hebold led the SMA in scoring with a 20 point average. Ed Peltz added 16 points a game, while Phil Weaver pulled down the rebounds. Rick Campbell, Mike Sutherland, and Loren Million also turned in steady play.

After sweeping to the district championship, Kimball was beaten by number one rated Pontiac Central in the regionals. The Knights inspired game was paced by a fantastic performance by Weaver who had 28 points and 22 rebounds.

The J.V. team tied for their third straight SMA title with a 13-3 record.

The 1970 swimming team swam their way to a 10-4 overall dual meet record and the co-championship of the SMA. Under the capable leadership of the Coach C.A. Smith, the fish overwhelmed Seaholm 62-43 for the dual meet championship.

Seniors Lead Inspired Winter Athletic Teams to an Overall Record of 32-13-1.

(Upper Left) "Flying" to another victory in his specialty, the butterfly, is four year varsity star, Gary Gottschling. Losing only once in dual meet competition this year, Gary highlighted the season by setting three school records. (Lower Left) Popping in another one of his patented jumpshots from the corner, Ed Peltz streaks onward to a 28 point night against number one rated Ferndale. (Center Right) To the jubilation of his fellow teammates, Mat Marsac touches out the Seaholm anchor man in the 200 yard individual relay. This victory paved the path to Kimball's win over Seaholm and eventual SMA championship. (Lower Right) Using a football tackle, 154 pound sophomore, Jim Gualdoni takes down his Seaholm opponent. Victory came soon after, as Jim pinned his opponent with less than one minute remaining in the match.

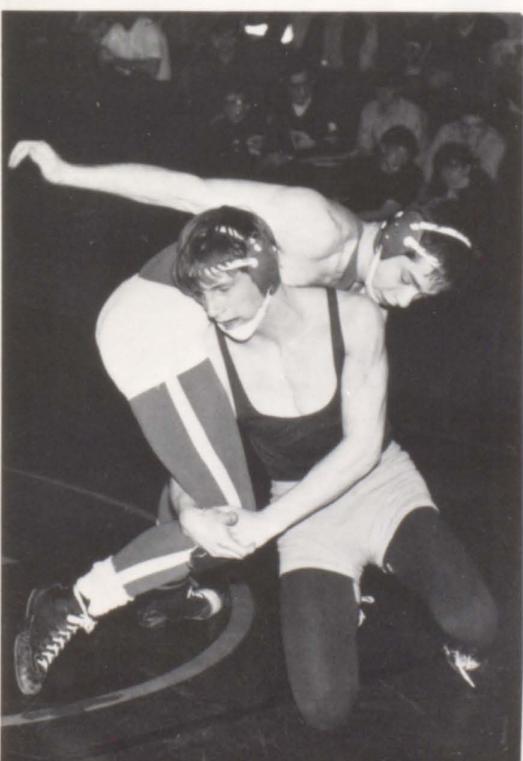

Despite a strong performance in the SMA meet, the tankers finished second behind Seaholm. Gary Gottschling set both a SMA meet and school record in the 100 yard butterfly with a time of 54:9. Gary also won the 100 yard backstroke. Other first place winners were: Rick Watson, who captured both the 200 yard and 400 yard free-style events, Mike Morrison breezed to a victory in the 200 yard I.M., Bill Opdyke triumphed in the 50 yard free-style and Tom Burgess proved victorious in the 100 yard freestyle. As a result of this fine showing, Kimball qualified eleven swimmers for competition at the state meet.

Undoubtedly one of the best swimmers in the state, Gottschling set many school records. Besides the butterfly record, Gary holds the SMA I.M. mark, while also anchoring the 400 yard freestyle team in their record time.

Mr. Robert Weber, Coach of the 1970 wrestling team, conditioned the varsity to a fine 8-3-1 record. While finishing third in the SMA behind Hazel Park and Berkley respectively, several grapplers stood out.

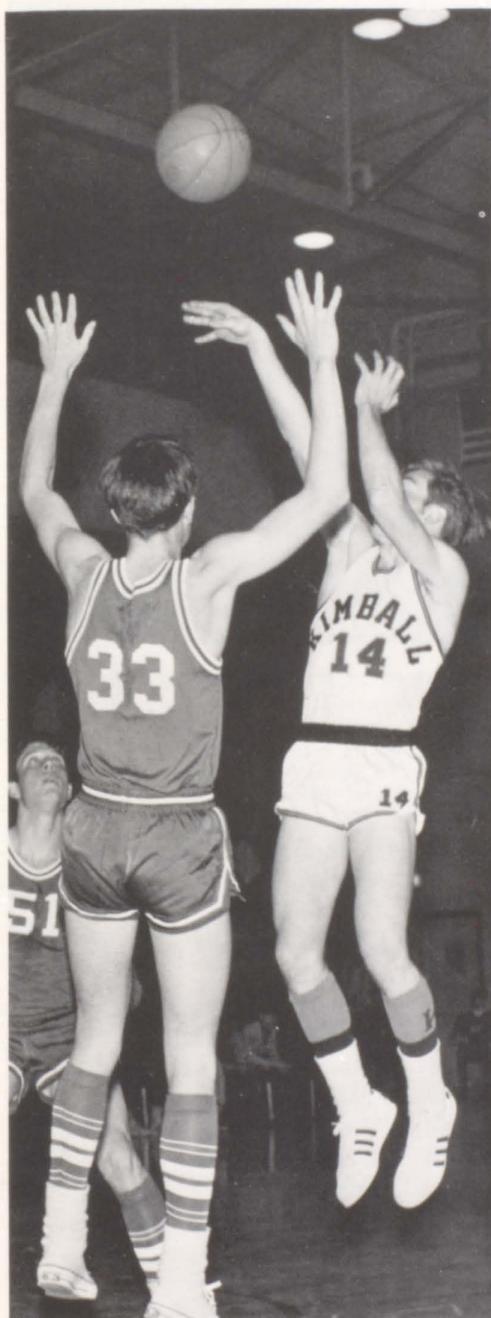

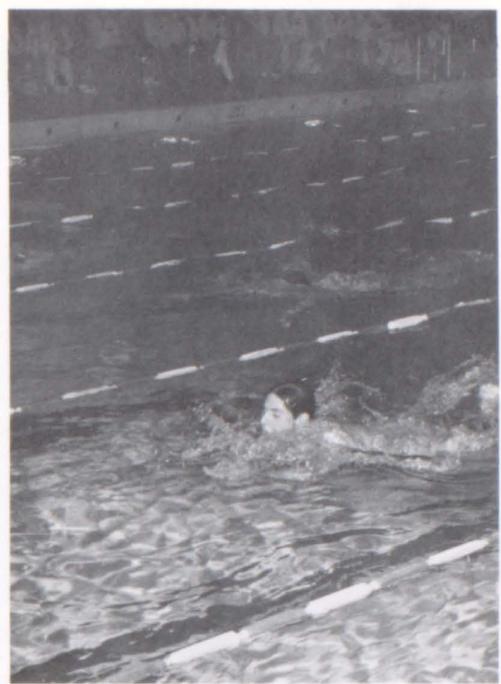

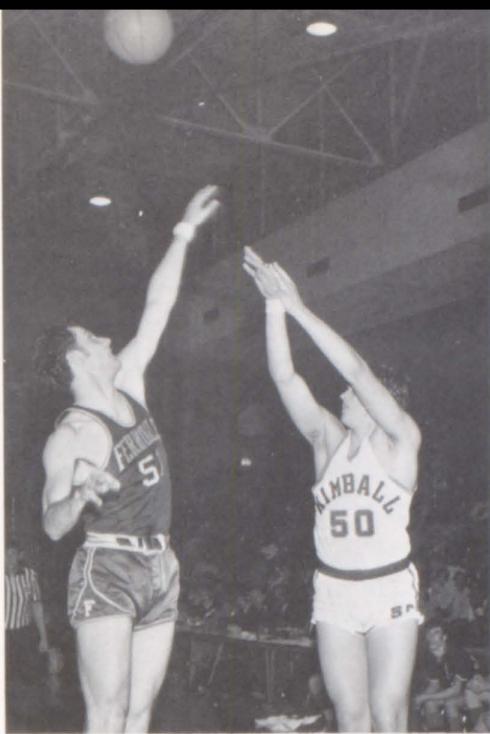

Top on this list would be senior, Greg Briggs. Undefeated in the dual meets, SMA champ, district champ and third at his regional, Greg highlighted the year by placing third at the state meet.

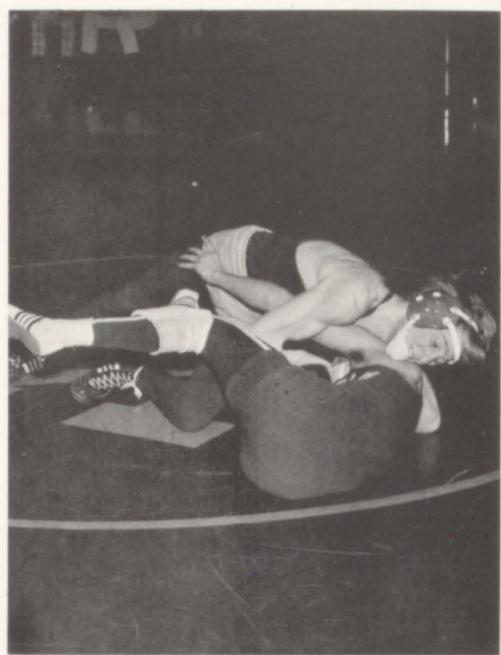

Chipping in at the district to help Kimball take an overall second place were Bill Haines first, Harold King second, Russ Eubank second, and Joel Parise second. At the regional the wrestlers finished third sending Briggs, King, Eubank, and 95 lbs. champ Haines to the State meet, where Briggs took a third.

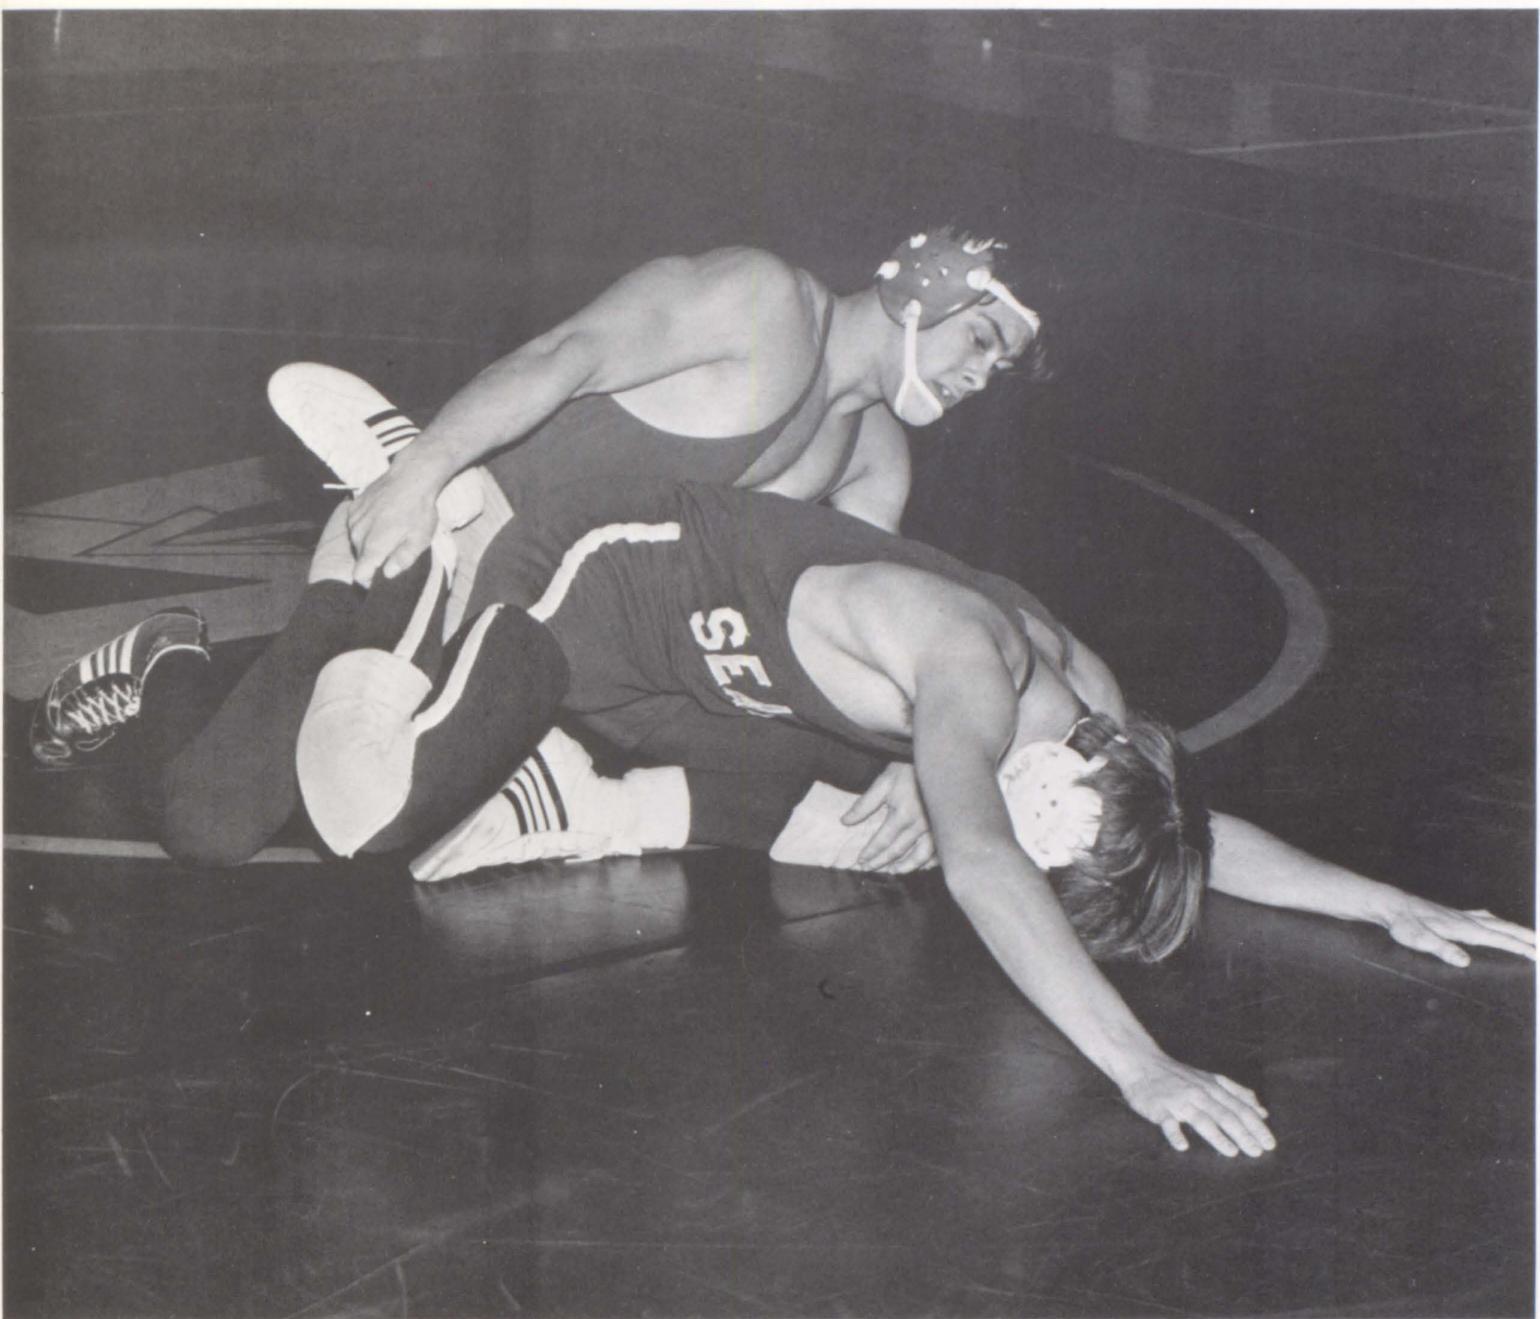

(Left) Straining forward in an attempt to overtake teammate Gary Gottschling, senior Keith Bartle enables Kimball to finish 1-2 in the 100 yard backstroke. (Upper Right) Performing the basic "Set Out" move, sophomore Sam Tarkington hopes to escape the grasp of his Seaholm opponent and pick up another point. (Upper Center Right) In a 76-64 loss to SMA champions Ferndale, Loren Million shows his form on a jump shot from the corner. Loren had a high mark of 21 points in the season opener against Groves. (Far Upper Right) Chalking up another win for himself and Kimball, breaststroke Norm Pegram finishes with his best time ever, 1.05:6 against arch-rival Seaholm. (Lower Center Right) A fine playmaker and the team stabilizer, guard Rick Campbell shoots for two points over the sagging Berkley defense. ## Individual Performances Shine as Spring Sports Prove Disappointing

A large crop of sophomores led the 1969 tennis team to one of its finest seasons ever. An overall record of 9-6 was blemished by only two league defeats, helping the Knights to a second place finish in the SMA.

Again this year, Kimball hosted the area regionals and much to the pleasure of Coach Charles Yeramian, the team responded with a first place finish. Sophomore Dan Richards, and All-League selection, easily captured the singles title, qualifying him for the state meet. Junior Wes Richards and senior Dave Jatho won the doubles crown after a tough final match, also sending them to the state meet. At the state meet, the Knights finished fifth, higher than any previous SMA school.

Although a 7-7 overall record and a 4-6 SMA mark put the 1969 baseball team in a disappointing last place, there were many bright spots in the season. Coach Frank Clouser said, "Among them was the 8-6 defeat of Dondero to win the All-City Trophy for Kimball." The highlight of the season, according to Mr. Clouser, was freshman Greg Stone's 1-0, no-hit victory over Ferndale.

Senior Carl Roehling, the all-SMA catcher, led the Knights with a tremendous .404 batting average in league play. In overall hitting, senior Bud Hurst batted a solid .333, while sophomore Bill Turkington chipped in with an average of .327.

The two leading pitchers on the squad were both underclassmen. Greg Stone and sophomore Doug Barnes turned in consistently good performances.

A strong team effort helped the Kimball golf team, coached by C.A. Smith, to an overall 7-5 record, including a second place finish in the SMA.

Junior Chris Moore led the team with an average of 37 per nine holes, the lowest score in Kimball history. Senior Tom McCullough also turned in many fine performances.

In the Pontiac Press Tournament, Kimball, behind the play of Chris Moore, shot their way into a second place finish. Individually, Moore continued to be impressive as he placed second, only one short off the pace.

Individual performances remained strong, but team effort sagged, resulting a disappointing season for Kimball's track team. A last place finish in the SMA and an overall record of 1-7, reflect this analysis of the team.

Coach Richard Zulch cited many fine athletes of the team, headed by junior highjumper Bob Hartrick. Already the school record-holder, Hartrick hit his peak during midseason with a leap of 6'5". He established new marks in both the SMA meet and regional, before placing fourth at the state meet.

Seniors Ron Milliron and Bill Balis formed one of Kimball's best half-mile teams ever. Tom Brown proved extremely versatile in many events. The distance races were bolstered by senior Neil Dutton and sophomore Phil Ceeley.

1970 Senior Class Proves to Be Successful in a Variety of Activities

Do-It! This slowly became the unofficial motto for the class of 70—and they did it! Everything they did seemed to come out perfect. During football season it is the job of the Senior class to run the concession stand at the home games. This year's class made more money than any before them, with a total of $1,049.64. This was made by selling hot dogs, potato chips, coffee, orange drink, and everyone's favorite bagels.

This is not the only thing the class of 70 will look back on with fond memories. There will be memories of working on the best prom Kimball ever had, and digging up the ROK in their Junior year . . . Working on the winning float for Homecoming, and nominating ten girls for the queen . . . Potlucks that were always a big success.

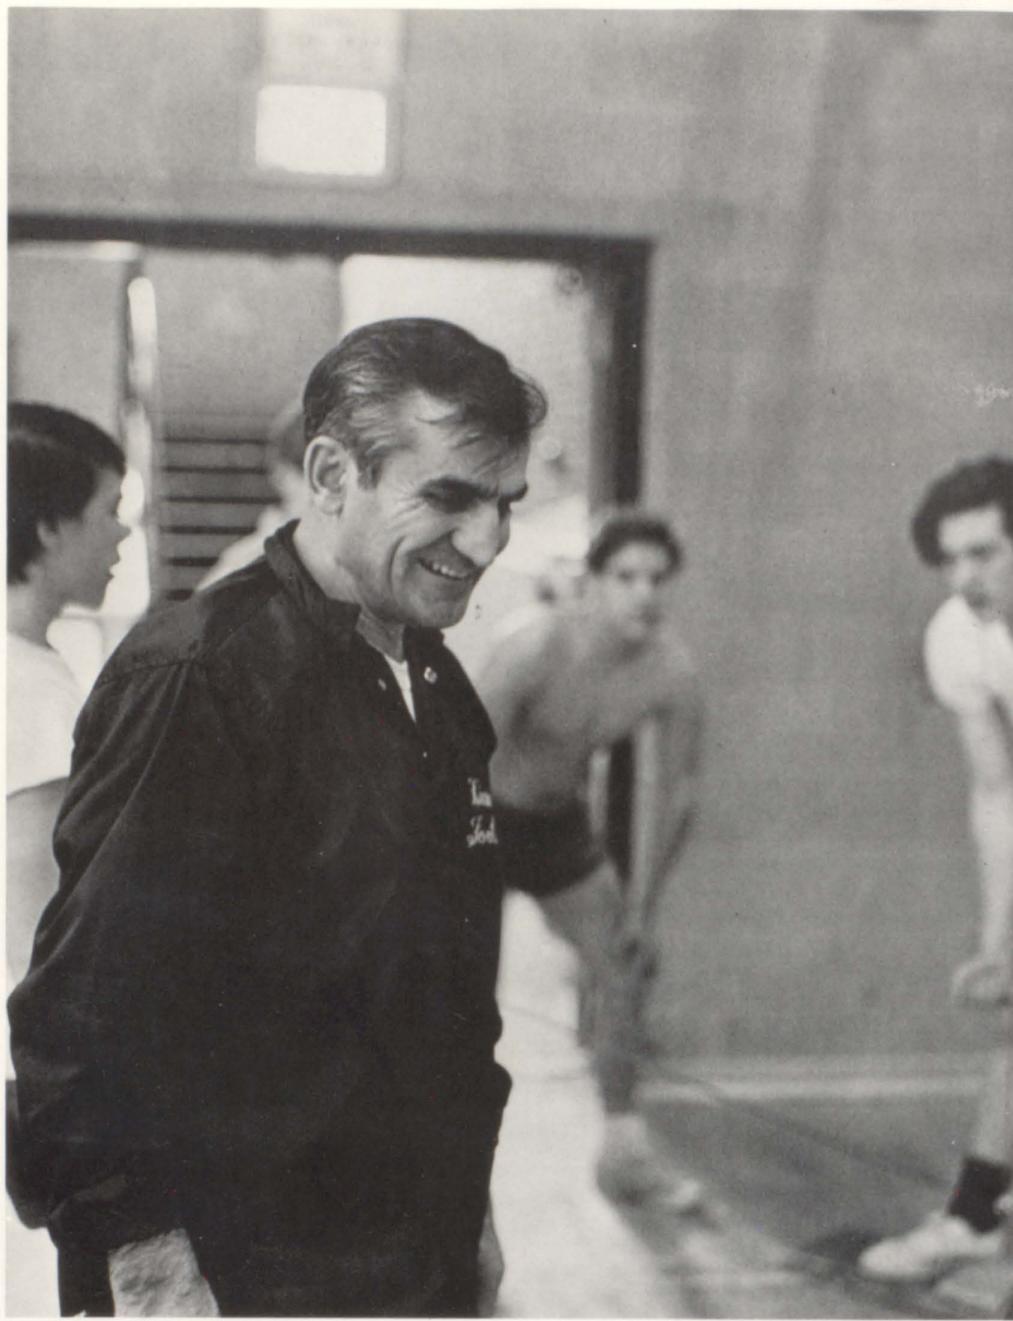

They will always remember "mom" as a person they could go to with their problems . . . Room 109.1 during any hour of the day for some, will bring back memories of a place to take a nap, make a phone call without having to use a dime, and a very private "senior john" . . . Trying to get the S.A.T. and A.C.T. forms in before the deadline . . . Finding out what colleges they would like to go to and finding out which ones would take them . . . Finding out they're ranked 804th in a class of 803 . . . Going out to the hill to have a cigarette when it's  $-05^{\circ}$  out, but it's too risky to have one in the johns . . . Skipping out to Burger Kings and finding out a Whaler is just as good as a Whopper . . . Winning the Ferndale game, even if everyone did catch pneumonia in the process.

The girls will never forget their second victory in the Powder Puff game . . . Wondering who you could ask to the French Club Dance because it is your last year . . . Going to parties, drinking and having fun, and going to parties not drinking and still having fun . . . The memories of whether you passed all your classes because if you didn't it could mean not graduating . . . Pasquales after the game, and bugging the waitresses, and having salt races . . . The senior trip, the wondering, and the waiting . . . Moving the ROK back to the circle drive, and explaining why it was in the road blocking traffic to the police . . . Painting it after mid-terms, to its rightful 70 . . . Going down to Bill Williams to have your Senior pictures taken and finding out you have to use hair spray even though you are a boy . . . Saying you'll be sold as a slave for slave day and wondering who will buy you . . . Getting lost during the car caravan and ending up leading it . . . Being fitted for your cap and gown and finding out you have the biggest head in your class . . . Going to Krogers and buying 30 rolls of toilet paper and tping Dondero during the day and knowing the kids inside couldn't do a thing about it . . . Playing Laura Nyro in the Senior office and seeing people who said they couldn't stand her become avid fans . . . Standing in three inch deep water while the picture for the senior ad was taken.

Then that last and final memory of walking down the aisle on June 12 to get your diploma and wondering . . . what now?

1970 Senior Class Honors Paul Temerian, Football Coach, With Lancer Dedication

The 1970 Lancer dedicates itself to Mr. Paul Temerian. Out of all the teachers on the staff he has done more than his share to make Kimball an A-1 school.

In five years as the head coach for the Varsity Football team he has captured the S.M.A. title four times. During this period he received the honor of being named coach of the year three times. His best seasons were in 1965-66 and 1969-70. In 1965 he had a perfect season only giving up 17 points. In 1969 he had an 8-1 record and Kimball was ranked 4th in the state. This is the only time the football team was ever ranked by the U.P.I. and the A.P.

Mr. Temerian is a graduate of Highland Park High and of Eastern Michigan where he played line backer on their football team. After graduation he taught at Mary Lyons Jr. High and was a football coach for Dondero. When he first came to Kimball he was head baseball coach and assistant varsity football coach.

He has made Kimball a football power and has only lost seven games his entire career. Kimball will always remember him as one of the coaching greats.

On October, 31, 1969 strange occurrences took place in the halls and classes of Kimball. Large feet appeared, cave men were reincarnated, bears danced, babies cried, G.I.s came home, and old men and women wore their finest clothing as the 1969 Senior Costume day took place. Costume day has long been a custom at Kimball, and everything wearable was acceptable and almost anything imaginable has been thought of. (Upper Left) In order to eat anything you must first catch and club it remarks Kris Koskinen to Libby Osgood, Karen Giradot, Linda James, Joanne Nicholas, and Pat Russells as she demonstrates her method of obtaining a meal. (Upper Right) "I've got this strange habit," complains Gary Gray as he shows everyone his problem. It seems he was on his way to school one day and ... (Lower Far Left) With an air of suspense about her, Paula Spurlock lets her secret out to Gail Henschel as they clown around before school. (Lower Left) Two teddy bear cuddlers (Jan Doll and Betsy Beal) and one busy yellow jacket (Kathy Osgood) make up part of the scene during classes on Senior Costume Day. (Center Right) Just a part of the whole menagerie posed in the courtyard for a mass display of seniors and their respective costumes or was it costumes and their respective seniors? (Lower Right) The maestro, Linn Duggar, and a dancing bear team up to perform for an audience outside of the cafeteria. For a fee of two jumping beans they would perform the Mexican Hat Dance. (Lower Center Right) Countess and Count Dracula, formally Jane Bauman and Tony Filippis, arrived in time to cast their spell on the already haunted halls at Kimball. (Lower Far Right) With the original voice of Bozo, Gail Spangler does her Bozo routine, which she is now famous for, to a group of onlookers as they enter the cafeteria.

Senior girls raced to a 38-14 victory over the juniors in the 1970 powder puff game. For the second year in a row the class of 70 proved victorious in the annual junior-senior powder puff game. Any junior or senior girl was eligible to play, and junior and senior boys volunteered to coach their respective teams. The boys also donned skirts and sweaters to cheer their favorite teams. Spirits rose to a peak and much inter-class spirit existed. During the games, touchdowns for the seniors were scored by Colleen Metz, Bev Patterson, Sue Rowe and Jan Griffith. For the juniors, Becky Awdey and Lynn Stange scored the points. (Top Left) A shot of the junior backfield showed halfback Linda Nelson about to receive a hand-off from quarterback Lynn Stange as senior Mary Gainer zeroed in for the tackle. (Top Center) Seductive cheerleader Bob Armour was caught influencing the line judge Ed Peltz's decision in that all important matter of where to place the chain. (Middle Left) Sue Rowe and Jan Griffen paved the way for fullback Marcee Grunow as the seniors ran a sweep to the left. (Middle Center) Seniors Donna Johnson and Shirley Crowe looked downfield for the football that they obviously missed as a junior player picked the ball off for an interception. (Lower Right) Quarterback Jan Griffen evaded the rush of the junior line as she threw the ball for that all important play, the touchdown. (Lower Center) "Oh, something's showing," grimaced senior cheerleader Bill Adams as he took a moment to pull his skirt up.

For the first time in school history, Kimball was honored with two All-State football players. (Left) end TOM BROWN and (Right) halfback RICK CAMPBELL were instrumental in Kimball's number four rating. Both were consistent players who could supply the big gain, as displayed by their 23 combined touchdowns and numerous clutch plays.

It is especially appropriate that DENISE DONE be chosen for a Knotable Knight. She has held both the office of treasurer and president of the Modern Dance Club. She also designs many of the costumes used in her dances. Denise is a member of the USO dance line and performs for many military bases. She also does jazz and polynesian dancing.

Knotable

Helping run Roundtable is a great responsibility and demands a lot of time. AL CIRILLI, this year's Vice President, knows this since he has been a member of the student government for the past four years. Al has worked on the approvals committee and the constitution committee for the past two years. He was also first string center of this year's football team.

Top choice for Knotable Knights from the publications department were the editors from Herald (Left) DENISE GRUNWELL and LIBBY OSGOOD (Not Shown) and SHARON LEE, editor of the Lancer. For a year the girls made periodic deadlines, wrote stories, and made sure their publications were printed. This involved many gruelling but rewarding hours.

Knights

Basketball is a sport that demands quick reactions and reflexes. Two players that have this outstanding ability are (Left) STEVE HEBOLD and (Right) ED PELTZ. They are captains of this year's varsity team. Ed has been playing varsity for three years and is known for his outside shots. Steve has been on varsity for two years and is recognized for his rebounds.

For two years the leadership and co-ordinate ability of GERI KRAATZ has made the Girl's Athletic Association an organized as well as active sports club. Not only does she preside over the club as president but also she participates in almost every competitive sporting event. This includes different events, like tennis and volleyball.

Notable

This spring will mark CHRIS MOORE'S fourth year on Kimball's golf team. Along with being selected All-SMA, Chris led the team averaging 37.5 strokes per nine holes. This mark was the lowest nine hole average of any Kimball golfer in the last four years. Chris shot a fine 73 at the Pontiac Press last year, that score was enough to capture second place.

As captain of the 1969-1970 wrestling team GREG BRIGGS was chosen to represent the squad as their Knotable Knight. Greg took a second in the Northville Invitational, a second in the State District Championships, and a fourth in the State Regionals, also placing third in SMA. He has wrestled on the varsity squad for four years, winding up his junior season with a 9-3-1 record.

As one of Kimball's Knotable Knights BOB HART-RICK has been SMA high jump champion and tri-captain of the track team. He was all-area and runner-up his sophomore and junior years respectively. As number one man in the high jump, Bob has set, broken, and reset the school record. Not only active in track, Bob is a drum major, a letter winner in cross country, and basketball.

In keeping with Kimball's tradition of outstanding swimmers, the class of 1970 produced one of the best in GARY GOTTSCHLING. Gary's presence almost assured the swimmers of two firsts at each meet. High in state recognition, Gary highlighted his junior season with an SMA record in the individual medley and a second place finish at the state meet.

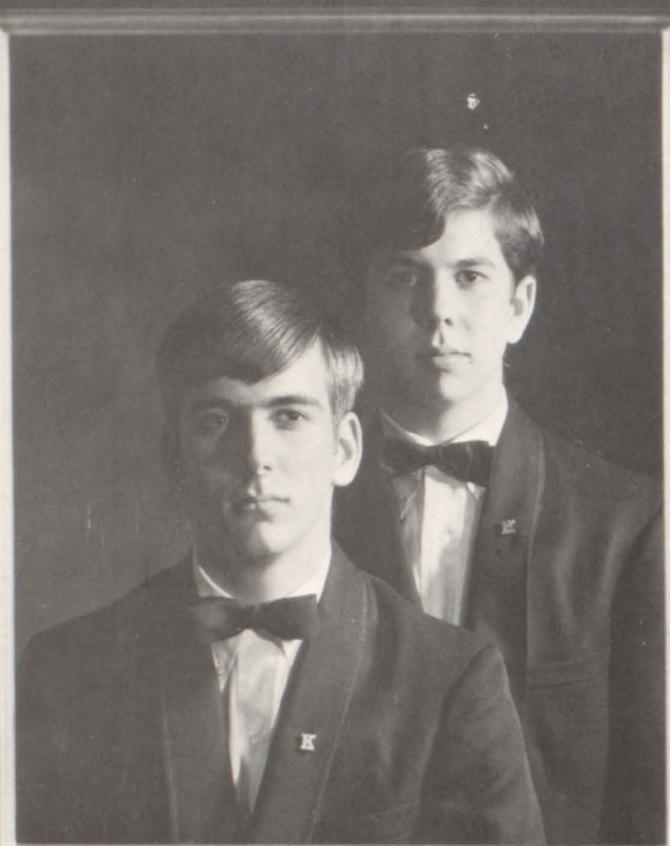

(Right) KRIS KIMBALL is secretary of the A Cappella choir, of which she has been a member for three years. She is an active member of the Madrigal Singers, to which she has belonged for two years. (Left) SCOTT LANCASTER is president of A Cappella and he too has belonged to Madrigals for two years. Both Kris and Scott have performed solos at concerts and they had leads in L'il Abner this spring.

JAN KRAMER has the great ability to express herself through a piece of art. She sees something that is of interest to her and captures it on canvas, paper, or anything that is handy. Last year Jan entered the National Poppy Poster contest. In order to make the national finals she had to win the city and state contests. This she did and then went on to win the finals.

Two of the most active students in the Kimball Music Department are Steve Eggleston and Derek Konopka. Steve, who has been in the Pep Band for four years and served as its leader in his senior year, has played the trumpet since elementary school. As a member of the First Band and the Pep Band, Derek has given much time and effort to music during his years at Kimball.

The work and talent contributed to Kimball's instrumental music department by Senior Libby Osgood has made 1970 a fine and prosperous year for the orchestras. She has played first chair cello and has been in the Baroque Strings since her sophomore year. A multi-talented musician, Knotable Knight Libby Osgood has made her mark on all music lovers at Kimball.

Jim Frew, a veteran of two years on the Varsity Debate squad, has proved to be one of the best debaters in the state. This year, Jim took first place in the District and Regional competition as well as placing eighth in the state last year. Jim will also be arguing through the competition for the John S. Knight Free Press Scholarship.

Four years of hard work in the WOAK radio station have been quite fulfilling for Mark Wildbur. Not only has he been able to broadcast during the various sports events, but he has obtained a fuller knowledge of how the electronic equipment in a radio station works. Mark's work in the radio station has been a great help to the other members and may lead him towards a good career in radio broadcasting.

This section, in memory of those members of the class of 1970 who have now departed to an eternity of Peace.

Seniors refueled their tanks at the first senior potluck held in Kimball's cafeteria. Over 400 students participated bringing everything from macaroni salads and carrot sticks to lasagna, pizza, hamburgers, lemon meringue pie and chocolate cake. (Top Left) Paper plates and cups were just a few of the formalities used by Linda James as she mastered the art of rolling spaghetti. (Top Center) Jane Patzer showed Nancy Sheridan a smashing time at the potluck. (Top Right) A pie in hand is better than a piece on plate, philosophized Bob Armor as he put his theory in practice. (Lower Left) Decisions, decisions, decisions, plagued Cheryl Chichowski, Joan Seleno, and Deb Donovan as they choose chicken, jello fruit salads, and a brownie over hamgurgers and banana cupcakes. (Middle Center) Awe-stricken Doug Havrestock marveled at the ability of Steve Hebold (Foreground) to function as a human garbage disposal. (Lower Center) What secret could that salad bowl possess to make Mr. Docks and Mom Cornell exhibit so much exuberance.

Old friends,
Old friends
Sat on their park bench
Like bookends
A newspaper blown through the grass
Falls on the round toes
On the high shoes
Of the old friends.

Old friends,
Winter companions,
The old men
Lost in their overcoats,
Waiting for the sunset.
The sounds of the city,
Sifting through trees,
Settle like dust
On the shoulders
Of the old friends.

Can you imagine us
Years from today,
Sharing a park bench quietly?
How terribly strange
To be seventy.

Old friends,
Memory brushes the same years.
Silently sharing the same fear ...

Time it was,
And what a time it was,
It was ...
A time of innocence,
A time of confidences.
Long ago ... it must be ...
I have a photograph.
Preserve your memories;
They're all that's left you.
