ACADEMICS

G

Jn the Middle Ages, scribes toiled endlessly copying information by hand onto delicate parchment scrolls. These scrolls of knowledge were passed on to the few who could read them. Education had little importance to the common Medieval villager. For Kimball students, academics are the center of life at school. Scrolls have been replaced by textbooks, video, and floppy discs. From language to science, from auto mechanics to math and computers, students gain knowledge and insight not only into the world, but into themselves as well. Knowledge is power, and in the tradition of academic excellence Kimball High School provides students with the power to pursue any goal in life; to become whatever they wish.*

Greg Hill (1) has tentatively selected "Am I Blue" as the title for his drawing.

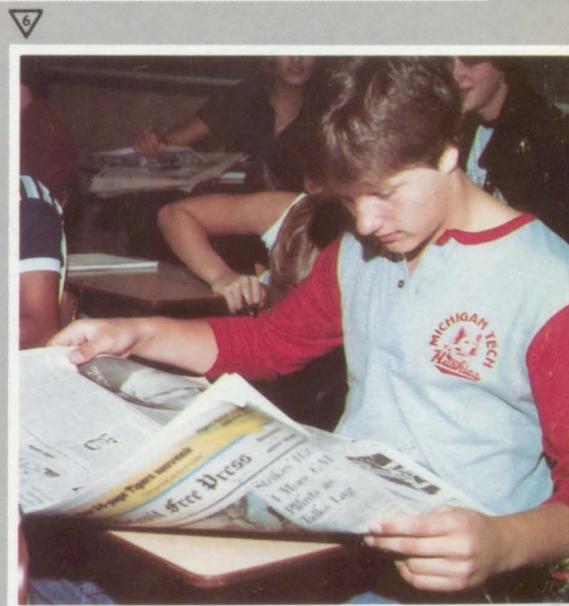

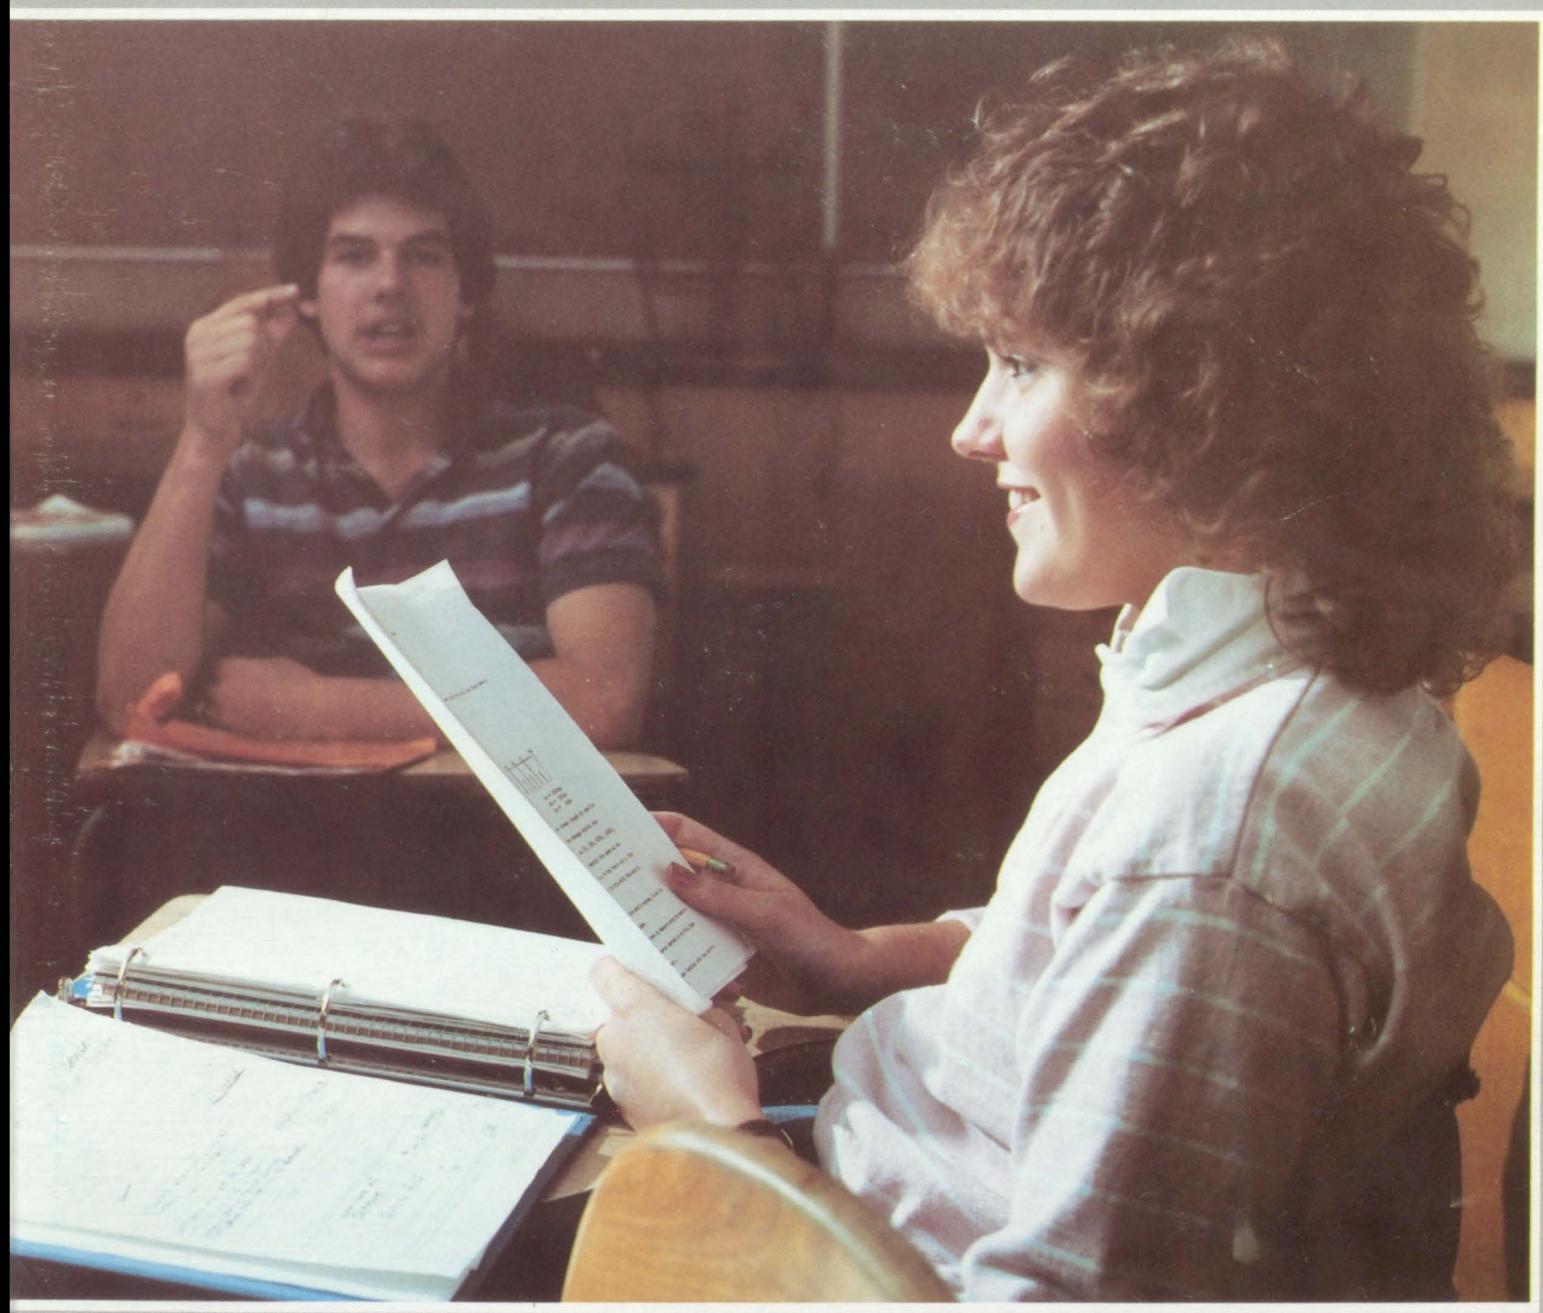

Tina Mills and Colleen McAuliffe (2) are not exactly in stitches as they check test grades during the sewing unit of their Home Ec class with Mrs. Jacqueline Williams.

Nothing could stamp such a smile on Meagan Cook's face (3) in Mr. Herrington's Life Science class than a good mark on a paper.

A wrench in time will save a wheel on his Volkswagen for Richard Doetze in auto shop.

Eyeballing a slide in biology (5), Greg Meeks (eyeballer) checks the focus as Gerald Snider waits his turn on the microscope.

Darrel Alton (6) flips through the latest edition of the Detroit Free Press for his news presentation in Mr. Rosen's Current Readings class.

ACTIVITIES

Brave and noble men of the Middle Ages were constantly tested of their courage and gallantry in duels and jousting tournaments. When a man proved he possessed these and other great qualities, he won the respect and admiration of his countrymen, and titles of honor were bestowed to him. To be dubbed a knight was a privilege greatly coveted. At Kimball, students strive to gain the respect and admiration of their peers, while participating in activities such as Dance Club, Roundtable, Ski Club, Band, Orchestra, and Choir. Thespians ham-it-up in plays and musicals, while orators speak highly of Debate and Forensics. Some students receive special recognition in National Honor Society. Spirit Week, Field Day, and Powderpuff add fun and flavor to the school scene.

Deanne Jordan (Annie) holds a frightened Sandy (1) as she listens to Hooverville residents lament their poor living conditions.

Junior class members (now seniors) whoop it up at Field Day, but (2) turned green at a sophomore success.

Senior Powder Puffer (3) Amy Pounds pitches out to Robin Nash for a big gainer as Senior Slam routed Junior Jam-a-rama.

Take our word for it, but Lynn Wallace (bottom), and Mrs. Sue Sturtevant and Miss Ann Holdreith, (4) art instructors, are hiding under those Halloween masks.

K

onor, valor, and chivalry are words which take us back to the Dark Ages, when heroic knights rode horseback across Europe. These valiant men fought with strength and bravery to protect their homelands. They challenged each other to duels and contests of strength and courage, and while the victors celebrated their triumphs, the defeated often lost their lives. Today, the Knights of Kimball bear the swords of strength and shields of honor as they compete in athletic events. As competitors, they set high goals and strove for perfection. Kimball is proud of its athletes, who accept defeat and victory with the same dignity. Our Knights are gallant, and no matter what the final score, they are still our heroes.

Her feet beating a tattoo on the cinder track, Therese DeFauw (1) races through her leg of the exhibition 400 relay against Dondero.

A thirsty gridiron warrior (2) takes time out to slake his palate during the football wars.

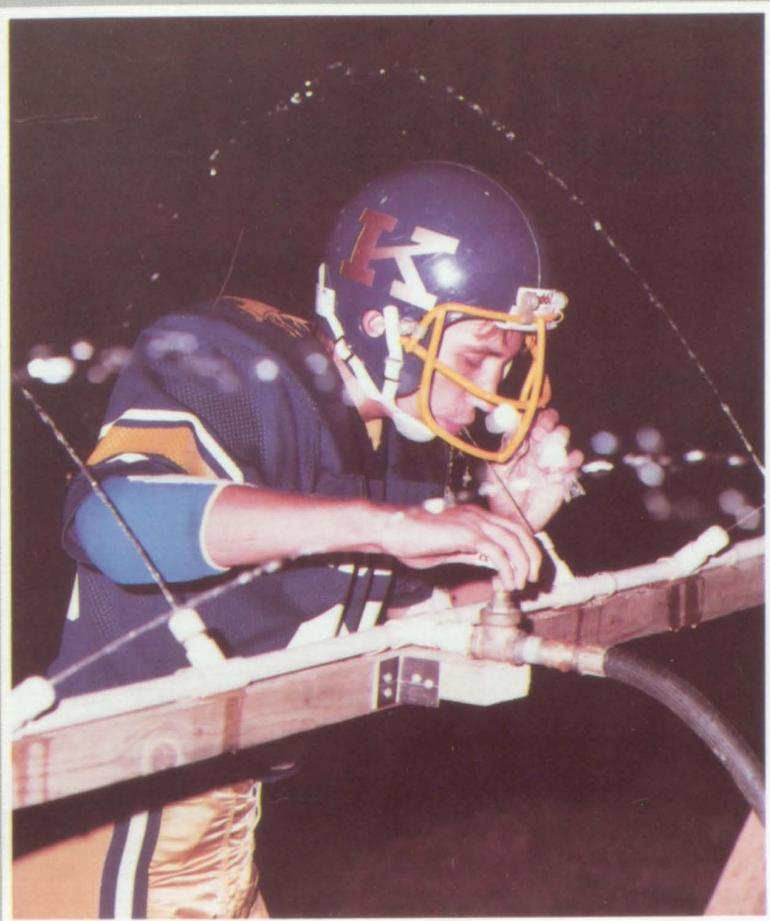

The sand cushions Rob Klobuchar's feet (3) as he strains for extra inches in the popular long jump.

Sue Howell (4) winds up to return a high bounce during one of Kimball's home tennis matches this year.

Floating through the air with the greatest of ease, (5) Tammy Parrott gives her feet an extra last second kick to avoid hitting the sagging high jump bar at the Dondero meet last spring.

cholars of the Middle Ages shuffled through the cold stone halls of the peaceful monasteries, carrying scrolls and quill pens. Kimball High School's underclassmen crowd the noisy corridors between classes, carrying books and pencils, making learning more a social event than the Medieval monks might have liked. Underclassmen, a picked-on, put-down, pushed-around bunch of kids, give Kimball the spirit and spunk it needs. At sports events, during spirit week, and on field day, underclassmen voice their support and show their pride in Kimball High School.

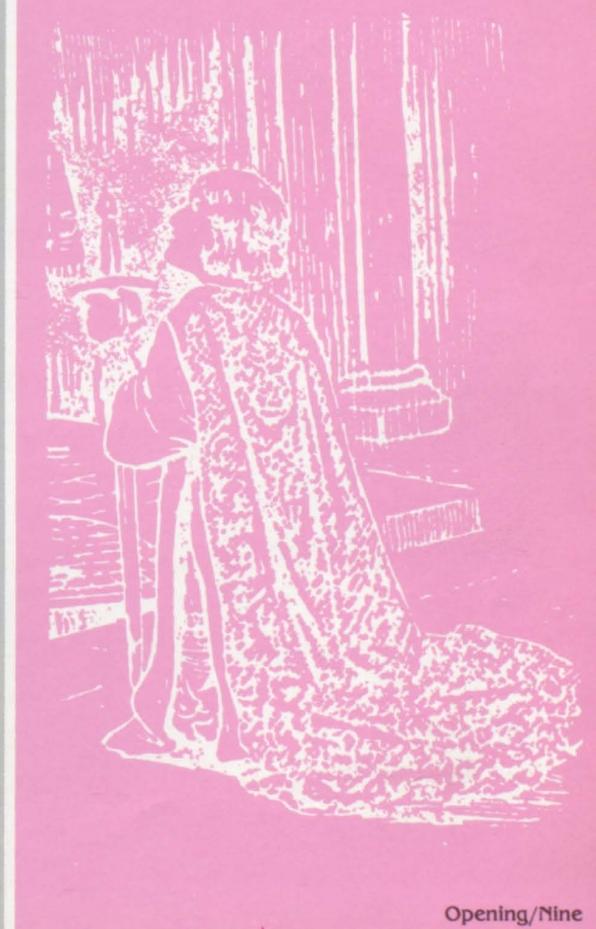

Eric Sargent (1) maintains a sober look as the photographer adjusts the angle of Eric's head for his underclassman picture.

Patti Forston (2) finds the library a restful place to complete her Biology homework.

Computer graphics (3) keeps Rick Pfeifle's eyes riveted on the monitor.

For Daralynn Barsuhn (4) arranging the material before she cuts her pattern provokes a smile.

Freshmen (they're sophomores now) proclaim their power as they (5) cheer their contestants at the annual field day.

SENIORS

Doung pages of the Medieval times endured years of studying and training in hopeful preparation of receiving the honorable title of knighthood. Once dubbed knights, they would travel the known world in search of conquest and glory. The Seniors of Kimball high school have spent the last 13 years of their lives preparing to charge like knights on horse-back into the future, whatever it may be. In the same way that knighthood provided for new opportunities and challenges for men of the Dark Ages, becoming a graduate of Kimball has opened doors and uncovered pathways for these young adults to follow. Parting seniors take with them precious memories of friends who taught them about life, and teachers who became their friends. They leave behind an impression of pride and accomplishment.

Homecoming festivities (1) were climaxed with the crowning of Queen Mary Nahhat and King Tom Leeper.

Colleen Kinkade (2) designs the glaive for the Lancer academic section.

Bob Proen (3) chomps away on White Castles as Amy Pounds cheers him on.

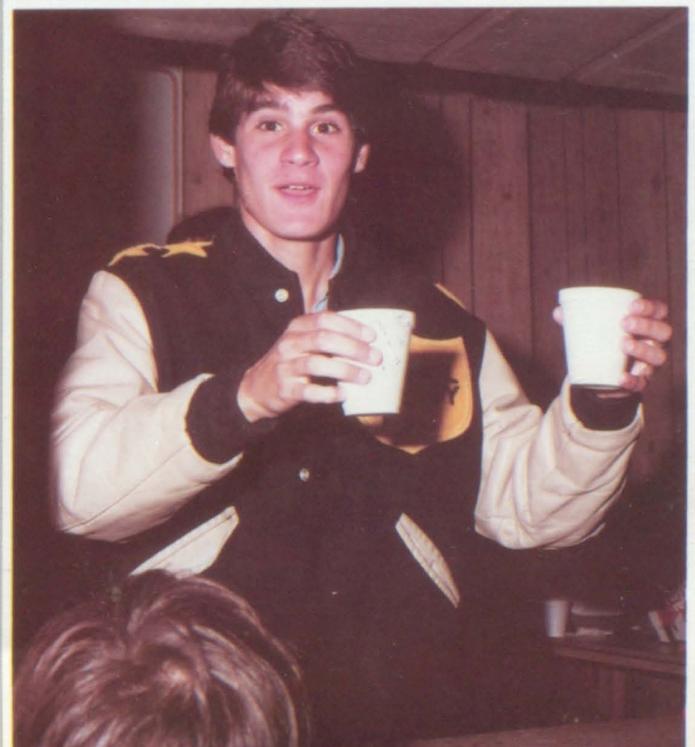

"Here's the pause that refreshes," shouts Jim Chatas (4) at the concession stand.

ADVERTISING

As the lives of Medieval villagers centered around the grand castles that dominated the countrysides of Europe, the lives of Kimball students revolve around the various businesses that line the busy streets of Royal Oak. Like castles, these businesses provide a strong foundation for our community. By placing advertisements in the 1985 Lancer, these businesses express interest and concern for the youth at Kimball High School. In return, students pledge their support of these fine establishments by remembering them when in need of a product or service. By maintaining this mutual cooperation, students and businesses alike help to preserve a stable community.

Kimball High School will be remembered for the scenes depicted on the page: the tree-lined wide expanse of the building; the grassy courtyard where students gathered; the off-painted Rock; the lights that look like arms overspreading the school mall; the curved entryway and the mural of St. George slaying the dragon.

Academics

Kimball's academic program provides students with a wide variety of interesting and stimulating classes. Aside from the basics, such as math, social studies, science, and English, young scholars study business, industrial arts, foreign languages, and other specialized studies. With the newly revised English curriculum, Kimballites can concentrate on specific English skills one semester at a time, and pursue specific interests. New classes include imaginative writing, current readings, and novels.

Betty Holly, (Above) in Mrs. Flynn's Office, Computer and Business Systems class practices her English skills from a reference manual. Chemistry, especially the experiments, fascinates Jeff Duryea and Kyle Fairless, (right) attired properly in their aprons and safety glasses, as they turn up the heat on their Bunsen burners in Mr. Heald's class.

Art is an expression of one's personality. It allows one to develop special skills and is a vent for creativity. There are many different classes to take here at Kimball. For example, Art I and Advanced Art are classes geared to painting and drawing. While in the Industrial Arts Department there are a whole range of different classes. Just a few are: Mechanical Drawing, Wood Shop, Metal Shop, and Auto Mechanics. This wide variety of classes allow students to work with many different tools and materials. These opportunities allow one to get experience in these fields before actually having to use them in the professional world. (1) Robin Hamson and Jeff Weaver blend colors together to get the optimum effect from their painting. (2) Lisa Scott puts the finishing touches on her painting of a bird. (3) Bill Hernden takes a good look at his work of art. (4) Pam Shook and Jay Cardew have fun making a life size "Trix Rabbit". (5) The effects of colors and shading are what art is all about. Here Audisho Youhana uses his trained eye to choose which colors look best. (6) Doing calligraphy is one thing that pleases Erica Bruning. (7) John Carlson always wanted to see his name up in lights but for now paint will do.

Industrial Arts

Developing manual skills and familiarity with tools and machines is the purpose of the Industrial Arts classes. A variety of courses provide many practical experiences which may be used in future job opportunities. These classes can teach students everything from how to repair a car, to producing a mechanical drawing. This variety of experiences allows each student to explore his/her own abilities to the fullest. Difficult assignments teach real world problems and encourage the student to discover the appropriate solutions. Working intently, Glenn Cassani (1) grinds the rough edges on the end piece of his metal shop project. Investigating the various parts of a small engine (2) are Chris Hebert, Butch Sink, and Tygh Outland. Practicing her welding skills in General Metals (3) is Nancy Hardmen. Jeff Gaudet (4) watches as Kelly Bodenstedt lays out her mechanical drawing. Using T-squares to complete their graphic arts assignment (5) are Jack Fuller and Chris Fleming. Carefully lining up the drill press (6) Bob Bohacek ensures himself an accurate placement. Dave Fryxell uses the circular power sander (7) to smooth his woodshop project.

Providing general knowledge of business principles and practices is the function of the Business Education department. Exploratory classes provide direct experience which students may use in deciding their potential and interest in future courses. Students gain skills by learning how to operate office machines, improve typing abilities, and work in a typical office environment. In addition, methods of sales, business management, and related techniques are presented in advanced courses. These classes prepare students for many office occupations and greatly increase chances for an office co-op position. Shantel Ripple (1) buys a pen, notebook and Kit-Kat bar from Danielle Bond at the Exit Ramp, the Business Education store where students gain practical retail experience. While enjoying his digital watch, (2) Bob Stergowski dutifully records debits in his accounting workbook. In her Business Comp class, Lolly Walker (3) checks her copy on the IBM display writer. Rob Rowland (4) spends time at the typewriter to increase his speed and accuracy. Verifying her closing entries in an accounting agreement is (5) Michelle Dilber. Business Law student Sean McDermott (6) details the many aspects of the court system in his test answer. Angela McKinley (7) looks for errors on her typing assignment before handing in her paper.

Students must concentrate on specific business tasks, gaining an overall understanding of general business operations. Exploring the business world can be an important step in deciding future career options. Students must gain a depth of knowledge in several designated areas. Yet, each person must also realize how the various elements combine to form an integrated whole. Concentrating on her adding machine figures, Tammy Parrott (1) is confident and poised. Focusing her attention on the IBM computer (2) Rhonda Goode works with zealous determination. Future stock brokers Al Hoppe and Laura McKechnie (3) plot economic fluctuations on their stock charts. Proficient at the typewriter, Heather Fassett (4) finds her drill work pleasurable and amusing. Complex and difficult, Julie Gross (5) is enthralled in her shorthand dictation. Shannon Johnson (6) leads a consecutive line of typers in the given lesson. A positive attitude enables Geoff Goolsby (7) to persevere in the most fastidious of accounting assignments.

Co-op is a very valuable course for the many students who participate in it. Attending regular high school classes, co-op students are excused early to work at their designated jobs. Gaining irreplaceable work experience while earning money, co-op serves an important part in the curriculum of numerous students. Divided into three main areas, Business, Office and Trade and Industry, co-op is designed to fill any student's needs. Working in a local jewelery store Michele Vancise (1) shows various gold chains to a prospective customer. Troy Design Service employee Mike Lim (2) enjoys his work as a part-time dressman. Running off a lottery ticket for a customer Bob Sullivan (3) is a courteous, helpful party store worker. Mary Nahhat smiles as Mrs. Miller (4) instructs her on how to type a necessary form. Receiving practical experience as a press operator, John Haskins (5) gains valuable knowledge in his co-op job. Sorting envelopes Renee Marsac (6) helps the drivers education office to run smoothly. Office co-op student Barb Stein (7) "attempts" to keep Mr. Chard, Mrs. Hurkley and Mr. Mager organized. Top salesmen at the Exit Ramp (8) Bob Sullivan, Chris Jewell, and Dan Hamson show off the stuffed animals sold this year during the holiday season. Performing maintenance work at a local tool company (9) is Trade and Industry co-op student Paul Hollow.

This year there is a new Language Arts program. Now there is a long list of classes to take. Some were thrown out, some are still the same, and there are some new classes. For example, there are eight writing courses. These range from Basic Comp. (required) to Advanced Placement English. There are four speaking/listening courses, nine reading courses, and ten english electives. Some of the new classes include: English for College Entrance Exams, Telecommunications I & II, Imaginative Writing, Current Readings, and Writing Workshop. (1) Pat McNitt and Kelly Bodenstedt discuss homework for the class, Imaginative Writing. (2) One of the required speeches in Miss Wildon's class is where one person describes something while the person behind them acts it out. Here Missy Wandell and Lisa Stein get a laugh out of doing theirs. (3) Brenda Schlabach looks up a word in a German dictionary while studying for a vocabulary test. (4) Julie Polidan, Dotti Lovins, Todd Lane, and Jamie Criger listen to Ms. Cornell discuss budgeting during their Communications class. (5) Jim Moore, Bill McIntyre, Rod Orth, Joe Marino, Dan Kosnik, and Nancy Kemble disagree about the Battle of Bunker Hill during Mrs. Fell's American Studies class. (6) The homework in A/P English is equal to that of a freshmen college course, but Cami Rapson seems to handle it well; she even smiles while doing it. (7) Neeru Sharma does some writing during Intermediate Composition. (8) Joe Guettler and Ted Wilks are found doing a reading assignment during their Short Reading class, but they seem to have an idea that their picture is being taken.

LANGUAGE ARTS

To be able to understand ourselves and each other, we must be able to communicate. That is the reason that there is a Language Arts department and why students are required to take at least three years of English. It is with the understanding that is learned in the many classes in the Language Arts department that we are able to function in everyday life. (1) During a demonstration speech in the class Fundementals of Speech, Anne Ryan uses the chalkboard to show a musical scale and the placement of the notes. (2) Patty Supnick tries to convince her audience of her views on resale shops. (3) Keith Collins, Brian Jones, and Janet Lewan pool their ideas as they write during their Basic Composition class. (4) One of the assignments in the Current Reading class is the summarization of articles. Here Julie Lohmeier summarizes an article on 'Governor's Residences Seek Monied Friends'. (5) Rick Pfeifle asks Mrs. Walker her opinions on his play during Imaginary Writing.

Mathematics is the science of numbers and their operations and interrelations. This field of study encompasses a broad range of number use from simple arithmetic to abstract formulas. Math is one of the most important areas of study in the high school curriculum. It teaches students how to think and analyze problem situations. This experience is invaluable for day to day activities. One uses math in almost every type of business transaction, balancing a check book, and in formulating new computer programs. Contemplating the formulas for the area of an equilateral triangle obviously uses much of Eric Cracknell's (1) energy. Reviewing for a test, (2) Kyla Boyse and Lisa Milker listen carefully for any revisions. Punching in his password Bill McIntire (3) attempts to gain access to his intricate computer program. Getting a head-start on her homework, Holly Grayson (4) demonstrates genuine perseverance in completing her assignment. Unmistakably hardworking dedicated students, Joe Rood and Philip Goushaw (5) plainly take their education very seriously. Mr. Jacobson (6) assists Kathy Hamilton with her computer report. Paul Hittie and Rob McMillian (7) discuss the best way to work a formidable calculus problem.

Kimball offers a variety of Math programs in order to meet the needs of its diversified students. Some classes emphasize the practice of basic arithmetic for use in the home or shop. Other sections introduce students to abstract theories of algebra. Geometry classes deal with measurements, relationships of points, lines, angles, and surface. Additional courses are offered which teach more complex algebraic equations, trigonometry and even calculus. Checking the previous day's assignment Alison McInnis (1) and Stacy Edmunds make any necessary corrections. Responding to one of Mr. Richards' famous algebra jokes Paul Link (2) enjoys the break from learning. Focusing her attention on a lecture Aileen Fedruck (3) stands ready to take notes. Sharing his vast knowledge of algebra with the class, Mike Delozier (4) works a problem on the board. Clearly Nick Sokolowski (5) has found an amusing story problem among his book's variety of questions. Praying to understand the graphing, Keith Maletski (REAR) (6) looks for guidance as Paul Perkins copies given examples. Suppressing some sort of inner emotions, Sarra Mossoff (LEFT) crams her pencil into her paper as Ed Caughall (7) delicately balances his pen in between his thumb and index finger while Patrick Kelley picks at his chapped lip and wonders what it's all about. Sadir Haji (8) and Jennifer Ellison get comfortable before the start of another day's lesson. Licking her fingertips and checking her computer program (9) Susan Howell is engrossed in her work.

Education has long involved the development of both mind and body. Physical Education at Kimball helps carry on that tradition, as students combine their classroom work with strenuous exercise. The one requirement is generally expected to be fulfilled in the freshman year. This ninth grade class consists of components that cover physical fitness, health, and swimming. Students are able to obtain additional credit by taking separate, specific classes that are geared to meet an individual's own interests. Weight training and body building is one of the most popular of these classes. Other classes will allow a student to earn Red Cross certification, how to officiate sports activities, and lifetime fitness and training. Jumping rope is strenuous activity (1) as illustrated by Joe Consiglio. Pushups are a vital part of every physical education program. Here, Tracy George (2) shows good form in maintaining a horizontal position. Working to stay fit (3) Scott Baker pushes himself in a series of situps. Kara Van Leuven hits an overhead return (4) during a phys. ed. match. The weight room is used by Bill Olsen (5) pumping iron. Stroke technique if practiced by Jennifer Fich (6) in her lifetime aquatic class. A weight apparatus is used by Kerry Benjamin (7) to increase her arm strength.

Kimball has classes in science for all levels of students from Environmental Science to Advanced Chemistry. The science program has been updated with the recent addition of computers used as teaching aids. (1) Neil Mucci and the class watch as Mr. Heald explains the lecture with the assistance of the computer. (2) Morris Brown and Candace Croswell take a sample to analyze in Biology. (3) Noelle Babb stirs her solution in advanced Chemistry. (4) Sandy Kasa takes notes as Mr. Schmidt lectures about Physics. (5) During an Advanced Chemistry lab on enthalpy of formation, Jeff Zyrd carefully calculates the temperature of his solution to assure an accurate conclusion. (6) In their Biology class, Craig Vincent and Bev Schmidt analyze plant leaves. (7) Patty Supnick and Randy Onica experiment with forces during their Physics lab.

A one year science requirement is mandatory for all students to graduate from high school. Kimball offers a variety of classes to suit each individual's needs and wants. Science classes provide opportunities for students to explore the living and physical world around them through experiments and discussions. Jenny Hamel (1) examines a beaker in the sunlight. A group of students in Mr. Hansen's class (2) reviews human anatomy on the model in front of them. Paul Hutko takes notes as his lab partner Jenny Fick (3) studies an algae slide. Lisa Hogan (4) looks on as Andrea Allen explains the workings of the inner-ear. A group of chemicals sit (5) waiting to be utilized by yet another pair of Kimball students during an experiment. Jill Gustke, Diane Heiser, and Kathy Wisniewski (6) study a replica of the worm. Mike Viviano and Marleen Aldea (7) use models to help understand the working of genes and dominant/recessive traits.

Social Studies is a study of the world and its people. Here in Kimball High School, there are many different Social Studies classes offered. Some of them are the basic U.S., Asian, and World History, World Geography and Government. Some dealing with the people include Survey of our Social World 1 and 2, Psychology, and Sociology. Three years of Social Studies is required including U.S. history and Government. 1) Ken Roskelly shows Anne Glasshoeder where Italy and Yugoslavia are located on the map. 2) Ed Counts shares his book with Kim Weaver in Futuristics. 3) Jim Chatas takes a break from working to smile for the camera. 4) Ingrid Buck is reading about the presidential election during her Social Studies class. 5) Barb Rosslip sits listening intently to a lecture. 6) Laurie Larson looks as though she has a hard time staying awake during class. 7) Nicole Fournier takes notes from her book for her history class.

Scott Brack, (3) Michelle Ralko, and Matt Marino teach themselves the topography of the Middle East and Asia in their geography class. Stacey Loprete, (4) Jeff Fleishauer, Kevin Martin, Brian Brackenbury, Mary Dott, and the rest of Mr. Stange's U.S. History class, listen to his informative viewpoint on the civil war. Brian Wisneski (5) reads about the culture of Japan, from a book given to him in Asian history. Tracey Smith (6) receives special help from Mr. Bush in understanding a word in Asian history.

DRIVER EDUCATION

Driver Education is an important step in every high school student's life. A license brings both freedom and responsibility to its owner, something not to be taken lightly. Before operating a car, students must take a bookwork class in which driving laws and rules are discussed. During the course students also observe movies which contribute to the lessons talked about in class. Driving a car begins for most students on the range located at the side of Kimball. In groups of three to four, students are instructed by a teacher in correct driving procedures. Lisa Hogan (1) simulates the driving experience. Making sure her friend Shae Steele is buckled up (2) is concerned friend Lisa Stein. With subtle self-confidence Matt Godlewski (3) hands in a chapter test to Mr. Kettenbeil. Michelle Johnston (4) contemplates a question on her Drivers Ed test. Susan Mar, Cranford Nicks, Pam Sharea and Mr. Freeman (5) pose glamourously with their Driver Education vehicle. Students Mike Chowning and Valerie Lorkowski (6) check the oil on a car. Before taking a spin on the Drivers Ed range Paul Fox (7) and Corey Brown fasten their safety belts.

Activities

etting involved at Kimball is quite easy to do with all the many activities we have here. If entertainment is your thing, Drama Club, Dance Club, Music, along with Synchronized Swimming provide the opportunity for students to show their talents.

To gain students enthusiasm, Roundtable organizes activities such as Spirit Week and Field Day. Roundtable also organizes Homecoming and the dance where the King and Queen are elected by the student body which is preceded by the football game. A serious side of Kimball's activities include Debate and Forensics. These activities require students to research certain topics to compete and perform. Also, the Herald and Lancer Staff are in charge of putting together the school's newspaper and yearbook.

RIGHT: Being the fine actresses that they are, Karen Larson, Laura Langa, Ruth Ensley, and Barb Dreist perform in the fall play, Strange Bedfellows.

Homecoming Dreams Become Reality For Nahhat, Leeper

Homecoming is an event that we all wish we were a part of. But whether we are the ones up for nomination or an escort, everyone takes part by casting their vote for Homecoming King and Queen. This year the crowns were captured by Tom Leeper and Mary Nahhat. Although the night started out with a depressing loss to Southfield, it ended with much joy and happiness, and perhaps a bit of disappointment for those who did not come out the winner. (1) Mary Nahhat and Tom Leeper make a cute couple as Homecoming Queen and King. (2) Assembled together are the King and Queen, their courts, and the escorts. (3) Kevin Martin was chosen as the announcer for Homecoming because he is on Roundtable. Kevin's job was very important because he announced the names of the nominees to people who otherwise might not have known. (4) Jack Blair is one of the many to congratulate Tom Leeper on capturing the Homecoming King title. (5) The joy and happiness that is brought by this auspicious occasion is portrayed in the hug that Mary Nahhat receives from Sue Scott. (6) A very elegant Sally Haack looks at her surroundings with satisfaction. (7) On a night of excitement and nervousness, Kelly Parkinson is comforted by the presence of her father.

Junior Jam-a-ram-a Team Feels 'Impact' of Seniors

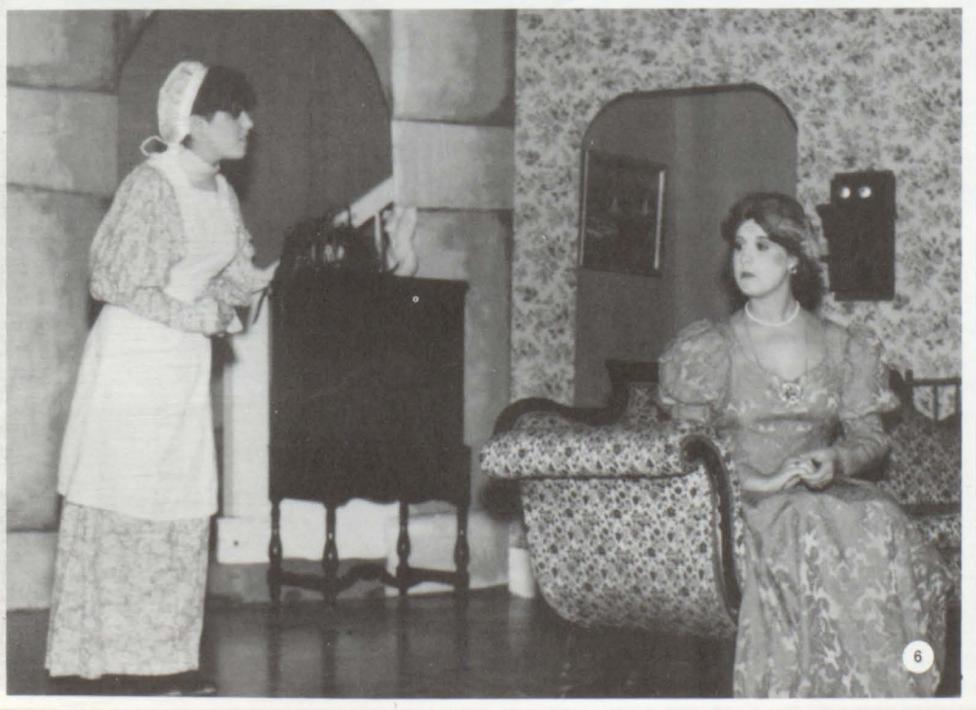

The Powderpuff game almost never happened due to the controversy surrounding last year's game, but thanks to the graciousness of Mr. Stephan and the good behavior of both teams, the game went on as scheduled. The contest ended 46-6 in favor of the Senior Impact. (1) Amy Pounds of the Senior Impact gets ready to throw one of her outstanding passes. Amy was always accurate in her passes all during the game. (2) As you look at the scoreboard in the background, you can see that the Senior Impact was in total control all night. (3) The Powderpuff game was played according to flag football rules. Here Meg McElroy does her part by grabbing the flag of Nancy Kotila. (4) Get herl is what Andrea Kopf is saying to her teammate, Sally Haack. Meanwhile, Andrea Allen tries to get through the line as some of the Jam-a-ram-a team comes to her aid. (5) Cindy Strzyzewski takes off after leaving Mindy Yamarino on the ground. (6) Kathy Ewers, Maureen Mooney, Joanne Baker, Shelly Adams, Stacey LoPrete, and Janeen Warford pay very close attention to their coach, hoping that his insight will help them win the game. (7) Fleet-footed Robin Nash takes off with the ball. Robin's experience on track and cross country made her a good running back. (8) Maureen Carney blindly catches the ball for the Junior Jam-a-ram-a. (9) The coaches for the Junior team were Keith Sikorski and Keith Wirth. Congratulations to both teams for a good game!

Drama Club Presents 'Strange Bedfellows' as Fall Play.

Strange Bedfellows was presented by The Thespian Drama Club on November 15 and 16 as this year's Fall Play. The setting is in 1896 in San Francisco. The Senator's son, Matthew, brings home his new bride, Clarissa, who happens to be a Feminist Leader. Clarissa is campaigning for the Women's Rights Bill and quickly wins over the women of the household to suffrage. But of course, the men are a different matter. (1) Mrs. Tillie Sparker (Karin Larson) shows up unexpectedly and shares a drink with Addie Cromwell Hampton (Laura Langa), Mrs. Worley (Ruth Ensley), Julia Cromwell (Meg McElroy) and Mrs. Gimble (Barb Dreist). (2) Senator Cromwell (Todd Nagelvoort), in shock, greets his son, Matthew, and is introduced to his bride Clarissa (Michele Roy). (3) Julia Cromwell shares a bit of advise about marriage with the new bride Clarissa. (4) Matthew, the Senator and Grifford Hampton (Michael Chowning) enjoy drinking themselves into a blither. (5) Vincent Pemberton (James Poole) signs his sweetheart, Lillian Hampton's (Heather Flemming) book. (6) Beulah (Colette Comeau), the maid, informs Julia Cromwell of recent happenings.

Mr. Popovecz, Kara McCurdy Lead 1984-85 Roundtable Activities

Roundtable provides leadership for many activities during the school year. (1) Ilkka Maunula makes a poster for the Roundtable but looks like he's checking someone out. (9) The Roundtable Field Day Committee meets together to discuss the rules and regulations.

Ilkka and Yuko Educate Kimball Students on Finland and Japan

This year Kimball High School was proud to have two fine foreign exchange students in Ilkka Maunula from Helsinki, Finland, and Yuko Takayama from Osaka, Japan. We here at Kimball are sure it was an experience that they will never forget, and we hope it was a pleasant one. (1) Yuko flashes a smile as she thinks back to the fun she has had in America. (2) Ilkka asks himself, "Is this computer class necessary to succeed in America?" (3) Mrs. McClanaghan helps Yuko to comprehend a few words in the Learning Lab, where both Yuko and Ilkka spend a great deal of time getting a little help because being an exchange student isn't easy. (4) Ilkka explains that Finland is a lot like the U. S. For example there is a drinking age limit of 18, and like the Beach Boys song, Ilkka loves Michigan and California girls. (5) Why would Ilkka want to go home to Finland when he can get better looking girls in America. Looks like he's off to a good start. (6) Ilkka thinks back to the days in Finland and whether he likes America better or not. (7) Yuko tells of the culture and tradition of past and present Japan. Here she models an authentic Japanese kimono.

PUBLICATIONS INFORM, ENTERTAIN STUDENTS

Throughout the school year student members of Kimball's various publications work hard to produce quality material. The Lancer staff works both during and after school to put together Kimball's yearbook. Laying out pages, choosing and cropping pictures, and writing cutlines, all under the constant pressure of the deadlines, are all a part of the staff member's responsibilities. Xenolith is composed of sophomores, juniors, and seniors who meet twice a week during homeroom. Together they review all writings and drawings submitted by students, deciding what will go into Kimball's Creative Arts magazine. Each member is required to devote at least an extra ten hours to the magazines publication. (1) Herald Sports Editor Kandy Novotny. (2) Herald Ad Manager Stephanie Goeckel. The 1985 LANCER staff: (3) Kevin Martin, Marc Conway, Chris McCormick, Lynn Marcella and Kori Schultz. ## LIBRARY AND A.V. STAFFS HELP BOTH FACULTY AND STUDENTS

Library and A.V. staff members serve an important role to both students and faculty. Assisting in anything from helping check out a book to setting up a movie projector, these students provide a valuable service during both regular and after school hours. Using the library can be made easier (1) with the kind help of such people as Mrs. Partridge. Keeping careful track of equipment (2) is one of Brian Davenports duties as an A.V. staff member. Miss Scarafino (3) is always willing to help any student upon request. A.V. staff supervisor Mike Miller (4) keeps many school activities running smoothly. Returning a magazine, (5) Jamie Mosher is assisted by Jennifer Bennett. A.V. staff members Paul Dunn, Jeff Hughes, and Glen Wilcox (6) are often called upon to deliver and set up various types of machinery. The Library Staff (7) (l-r) includes, Front Row: Jennifer Bennett, Laura Cole, Teri Lakeman, Shari Smith, and Kim Schmidt. (6) Tracey Bera, Beth McClure, Laura Wolf, Teri Sierens, Nancy Kotila, and Beth Hemmilla strut across the stage. (7) Sheri Forrester, Tracey Bera, and Teri Sierens dance for the camera. (8) Nicole Galli takes great joy in her dancing. (9) Kathy Dunaj reaches for the sky in this pose.

Synchronized Swimmers Rehearse For 'Naidades Paint The Town'

The Synchronized Swim Club works hard to put on their annual show. Mrs. Karen Lokken is the coach of the swimmers and the two officers are Jeanne Jahsan and Noelle Babb. The swimmers practice then try out for parts in the show such as solo, mixed duet, and duet. This year's soloist is Nelle Babb, the duet is Jeanne Jahsan and Tara Tuomaala to the song "Orange Express". Mixed duet will be Linda Glasson and Mark Danhausen to the song "Boys of Summer". (1) Jeanne Jahsan does the difficult flamingo during her routine. (2) Every year there are guys who participate in the show. Two of the guys this year are John Fallon and Jeff Welsh, with Melissa Ritter and Linda Glasson on their shoulders. (3) Noelle Babb smiles as she practices on her solo routine. (4) The club picture - (back row) Ruth Ensley, Gayle Kurkowski, Jeanne Jahsan, Tara Tuomaala, Noelle Babb, and Mrs. Lokken. They reached the Octave level at the Pittsburg Central Catholic Tournament and at Birmingham Seaholm. The debate team finished 11th in the state. (6) Mrs. Greco, a dedicated instructor, has provided her students with plenty of support and education to win, which is proved with all the trophies and awards displayed in her room. (7) Sean Scully and John Crowe perfect and perform a speech for competition. (8) This years Novice Debate team includes: Cecil Sherman, Mike Chowning, Stacey Brack, and Jeanette Petersen, which place 10th in the state.

Students Display Enthusiasm During Hectic Spirit Week

The students at Kimball set aside the week of the Kimball/Dondero Football Game to show their spirit. During the week there were College Day and 50's Day. Also there was Senior Dress-Up Day which gave the Seniors a chance to be what or who they really wanted to be without being criticized. Also there was Pajama Day and Blue and Gold Day which was followed by a Pep Assembly, which ended the week. These are just a few people who participated and showed their spirit. (1) By looking at Matt Bodde and Kathy Bough's faces you can tell they're in the spirit of things on Blue and Gold Day. (2) A very ecstatic Rhoda Diemer displays the college of her choice on College Day. (3) Tom Hill concentrates intensely as he works on his art project while dressed in Blue and Gold. (4) Class of '86' goes bananas at the Pep Rally. (5) Mr. Miller, Dave Kroschuk, Brian Davenport are from the AV staff, which played an important part at the Pep Rally. They made sure the sound was properly adjusted for optimum effect. (6) 'Fiftier' Meg McElroy gives her opinion of Spirit Week. (7) Marty Conselyea shows us the latest fad in night wear on Pajama Day with the assistance of his friend Ted E. Bear. (8) Showing her school spirit on College Day is Holli Zwar who poses for a picture. (9) Bringing the 50's back to life is Mike Viergge. (10) Kimball's pride and support of the team shone through the day of the Kimball/Dondero game which Kimball lost by a score of 14 to 0. The students had a lot of fun and the week was a huge success.

Kimball Thespians Do Their Version of the Musical 'Annie'

The 1984 Spring Musical put on by the Thespians was "Annie". The story of "Annie" is about a little orphan named Annie, who is adopted by a very rich man named Daddy Warbucks. Annie and Daddy Warbucks were played by last year's seniors Deneane Jordan and Tim Gaudet. (1) Julie Roehrig, who looks as though she is singing her heart out, plays the star to be. (2) Michele Roy, who plays the mean tempered matron of the orphanage. (3) Annie (Deneane Jordan) sings out a song, while little Allison Lokken sleeps on her lap. Allison plays the role of the orphan Alice. (4) Ray Fournier and Karin Larson play the roles of Rooster Hannigan and Lily. (5) Miss Lorna Wildon, who has been in charge of the Thespians for about eighteen years, does the casting and directing of the plays. She picks out the plays and makes sure everything goes all right. (6) Orphans Molly (Colette Comeau) and Annie (Deneane) read a letter, while other orphan Pepper (Jacquie Fagg) looks on. (7) Dayna Welch, Mark Patton, Tammy Jordan, John Parmenter, Tim Wolf who plays Franklin D. Roosevelt, and Bryan Major, sing during one of the scenes of the play. (8) Orphans Karen Grim, Anne Ryan, Colette Comeau, Deneane Jordan, Elyse Comeau, and Katrina and Allison Lokken have fun falling back on each other during the play. (9) On stage are LeAnn McKay, Michael Chowning, Paul Bekemeyer, Michelle LaLumiere, Matt McMahon and Lisa Sylvester.

Class of '85' Triumphs over Others in 1984 Field Day

The 1983-1984 Field Day turned out to be an unexpected win for the Juniors. Although the class of '85' had a strong freshmen year, their sophomore year was disastrous and now as Juniors they weren't expected to win Field Day. But they did, with the Sophomores taking second, the Freshmen third, and the Senior class trailing in last place. (1) The class of 1987 turned out in large numbers to show their enthusiasm. (2) A flat-footed Jim Bell races off in attempt to win the Flipper Race, hoping that maybe the Sophomores might 'hop' into first place. (3) Although they did not win, (starting at end of line) Colette Comeau, Tim Lowe, Karen Hibbins, Sherry Rolph, Dave Sarris, and Bill Haubert get aid from their captain, Amy Pounds, in the Spoon Pass. (4) Mike Bemis is putting his best effort into the grueling Triathlon, and in the end he succeeds. (5) Sophomore Rod Orth is concentrating very hard on making this catch because he doesn't want to end up with 'egg on his face.' (6) Who are the people who get the spirit of the students to surface? Why it's the Pep Band, of course! Pictured here are Rod Strumbel, John Fallon, Art Staff, and Mark Danhausen. (7) Here is a very determined Heather Mobley, of the Freshman class, trying to pull her way to victory. (8) The 1986 class color is yellow and here a big bunch of 'bananas' cheering on their classmates.

Candidly Caught Candids

The essence of a yearbook is to give an insight into the lives of students. The student life is classified into different sections such as Academics, Activities, Sports, Underclassmen, and Seniors. In these different sections are pictures of the student in his/her natural habitat. On this page some of the activities that students are involved in are portrayed. (1) The importance of this table tennis game is reflected in the serious look on the faces of Yonghyun Kim, Kenny Roskelly, and official Andy Puma. (2) The A Cappella Choir is a very busy group. Pictured in the hall during a pep rally the Choir adds to the spirit with their voices. (3) Preparing their makeup for the Fall Play are Michele Roy and Michelle LaLumiere. (4) Showing off their good cheer before the holidays are Karen Kotila and Cami Rapson of the Herald Staff. (5) Tammy Jorden of Round-table contributes her part in the distribution of bouquets on Flower Day. (6) Shelley Leemon prepares to go home after a long hard day at school. (7) Shannon Johnson and Ben Brennan talk about the songs on Ben's latest album. (8) Barb Stein is helped from the stadium after the taking of the Senior Class pictures on a rare sunny afternoon.

Sports

ver since Kimball opened in 1957 the Knights have always had a reputation as being at the top of the Michigan High School competition. This year, as always, the Knights have lived up to their great reputation once again by having another outstanding year. This goes for track to soccer and everything in between. Kimball has forever had superb athletes and the best coaches around to mold these fine athletes into true champions. Because of Kimball's tradition of excellence, if a school has the rare opportunity to defeat Kimball, they know they have beaten the best.

BOYS GOLF

Won: 9

Trudy Diemer and Tricia Weber (1) enjoy the pleasure of being in the lead and pacing themselves. Maureen Carney (2) quickens her pace and comes up behind another runner, who after a fast start is beginning to tire. Vicky Miller and Molly Greening (3) run side by side. Amy Gore (4) fights for the lead while being flanked by two other runners, obviously very good to keep up with Amy. The 1984 Girls Cross Country Team members are: Top (l-r): Coach Ewell, Becky Ellison, Laura Robinson, Beth Lawrence, Tricia Weber, Robin Nash, Jenny Lawrence, and Mary Ann Welsh. Middle (l-r): Dawn Borg, Maureen Carney, Amy Gore, Mary Sterling, and Deanne Macks. Bottom: Amy Saunders, Trudy Diemer, Vicky Miller, Beth Bethe, and Molly Greening. Coach Ewell discusses (6) an interesting fact with Laura Robinson. Beth Lawrence (7) pulls away from the pack and into the lead. Laura Robinson (8) demonstrates a steady stride and a good pace. The Knights finished the season six and three overall, and four and three in the S.M.A.

The 1985 Girls Gymnastics team has had an excellent year with ten wins and only one loss. Led by Captain Angie Miller the girls push themselves to do the very best possible throughout their season. With self-assurance Alissa Driscoll (1) uses her talent for a unique pose on the balance beam. Kelly Culling (2) begins her floor exercise. Cathy Riley's smile (3) makes the most difficult of moves look simple. Extreme balance and strength (4) are required for Nicole Cornell's work on the beam. The 1985 Girls Gymnastics Team (5) (l-r): Kelly Culling, Kathy Steele, Cristi Winsten, Tammy Olmstead, Char Lopez, Beth Hansen, Nicole Cornell, Lori Edwards, Alissa Driscoll, Cathy Riley, Chris Topolski, Robin Sheridan, Diane Heiser, Angie Miller and Coach Ewell. With style and grace Angie Miller (6) strikes a pose during her routine.

Kevin McCullum (1) is pictured here amid stride while dribbling the ball. A muddy Bill Haubert (2) is also caught in the act of kicking the ball. Mike Archinal (3) is surrounded by a group of marauding invaders. Actually, he is standing in for a penalty shot. (4) The 1984 Kimball High School Varsity Soccer Team members are (from top row l-r): Coach Bob Borowski, Eric Britcher, Kevin Martin, Gary Miettunen, Glen Miettunen, Mike Glaza, and John Sonnenberg. Middle (l-r): Paul Bekemeyer, Jeff Belanger, Mike Archinal, Rod Orth, Bob Swanson, Steve Markoff, and Coach Hamilton. Bottom (l-r): Kevin McCullum, Doug McIntyre, Bill Haubert, Randy Onica, Mike Vieregge, and Safa Sitto. John Sonnenberg (5) pushes off an opponent and makes a break for the goal. Co-captain Safa Sitto (6) plants his foot and starts his motion for a free kick. This season was a beginning for Coach Mark Hamilton, and his Knights were eleven, seven, and one.

The 1984 Girls Varsity Basketball team had a rather disappointing season with an overall record of five victories against sixteen defeats. They finished with three wins along with eleven losses in the S.M.A. (Southeastern Michigan Association). The team is looking forward to a winning season next year with a senior ball club and up in coming J.V. players. Shannon Nichols (1) goes to the baseline for a lay-up and another two points. The 1984 Varsity team (2) are: (standing) Heidi Zwar, Debbi Killewald, Cheryl McLean, Shannon Nichols, Amy Pounds, Nancy Pedrick, Coach Spurgeon. (sitting) Jenny Adams, Sheri Noble, Jadeen Soo. Nancy Pedrick (3) sets up at the top of the key for her shot. Cheryl McLean (4) hustles to win the ball from the opposition. Nancy Pedrick (5) moves quickly and swiftly down court on a breakaway. Jenny Adams (6) shows off her basketball skills as she masterfully dribbles the ball through the off-guard defenders. Amy Pounds (7) pivits and looks for the net and two points. (8) Amy Pounds again turns and shoots for the hoop. Nancy Pedrick (9) makes her move for an outside jump shot. Jenny Adams (10) relays the signal from the bench to the players on the court.

The 1984 Varsity Baseball team had an outstanding year as they eliminated the competition to take first in the Southeastern Michigan Association (S.M.A.). With coach Frank Clouser at the helm, the Knights sailed through their games winning 20 out of 31 challenges. The members of the (1) 1984 Varsity squad are: standing (l-r) Coach Brownie, Jeff Gaudet, Dan Kosnik, Brad Lewis, Dan Nichols, John Maurice, Chris Quick, Andy Puma, and Coach Frank Clouser. Kneeling are: David Bishop, Robert Lewandowski, Gary Isaacs, Jim Wenner, Brian Alton, and Mike Vetraino. Sitting are: John Osborne, Rod Orth, Todd Gustke, Gary Grant, and Eric Grant. Captain David Bishop (2) closes his eyes in dismay as he swings and misses the ball for a third strike. Jim Wenner (3) concentrates on making a good throw to get the batter at first base. Todd Gustke (4) leads off and digs in as he watches the pitcher in hopes of stealing second. While starting yet again for Kimball, pitcher Bob Lewandowski (5) shows off his game-winning form. Dave Bishop (6) makes another terrific play as he snags the ball and makes a brilliant throw to first. Dan Kosnik (7) stands at the plate hoping for one more, in his string of many base hits. Coach Frank Clouser (8) looks on as his team cruises to another easy victory.

SPORTS CANDIDS

These two pages are dedicated to the various sports that Kimball athletes participate in. Scott Hodgin (1) prepares for a return during a Boys Tennis match. Bill Byrne (2) strides along during a Boys Track meet. Amy Pounds (3) looks for a pass. Amy is an outstanding member of the Girls Basketball team. Soccer co-captain Safa Sitto (4) dribbles down the field. Susan Howell (5) rushes the net. Susan is a member of our illustrious Girls Tennis team. Golfer Ken Anderson (6) concentrates on a long putt. Tom Leeper (7) rushes straight on for the football team. Kristen Lozowski (8) shows some fancy footwork for the Girls Soccer team. James Moore (9) sprints the last few yards to the finish line. Athletes like these give Kimball a good name.

Underclassmen

Undoubtedly Seniors are the most celebrated high school students socially and activity wise, although the other three-fourths of the student body play an important part in school events as well. In fact, Underclassmen often make up the most vital part of any given activity. What they lack in Senior style, Underclassmen amply make up for in numbers. Making friends while participating in various sports, clubs, and school events brings each class closer as they learn more about each other. While Seniors may hold a more prestigious role, Underclassmen certainly play a vital part in high school activities.

Seniors

Perhaps the Class of 1985 is the most bizarre class that has ever walked the halls of Kimball High. From their Freshman year to their Senior year, the Class of '85' have done things that most people couldn't even conceive. For example, during their Sophomore year, a few members introduced the Freshmen to Homecoming by burning the Pac-man float. Then in their Junior year they once again made their way into the books by an eat-and-run adventure at Denny's. The Class of '85' has now matured to a well rounded group of young ladies and gentlemen.

KNOTABLE KNIGHTS

On the following four pages the Lancer staff presents the outstanding members of the 1985 graduating class, known as the Knotable Knights. (1) ANGIE MILLER has been a member of the varsity gymnastics team for four years, and MVP for the last 2 years. Angie qualified for the Regional Championship four times and was the 1985 captain. A member of Orchesis for four years, KATHY DUNAJ has choreographed 3 numbers for the annual spring show. As president of the 1984-85 season, Kathy has improved Dance Club through her hard work. (2) As senior co-captain of the basketball team, DOUG MUSICK is the starting center, averaging 10.2 rebounds and 9 points per game. (3) NANCY PEDRICK is one of the girls' soccer league's best goalkeepers and her leadership guided her teammates through 1984. SAFA SITTO led the boys' soccer team with assists and finished second in team goal scores. Selected as MVP Safa was appointed to the 1984 All-SMA Team. (4) JIM CHATAS, a member of the track team for 4 years, lettered in 3 of them. Jim is a member of the 2-mile relay team that holds the school record. ROBIN NASH holds the SMA track record in the 200-meter dash and the school record in four events. Named MVP by her team for the last 3 years, she has also been All-League and All-County in the long jump. (5) MATT BODDE has played on the Kimball Golf Team for 4 years. As a senior Matt was selected MVP by his teammates and named on the All-SMA Team. (6) A member of the A' Cappella choir, RAY FOURNIER's tenor voice has led him to 21 solos in various concerts. Twice a participant in the State Solo and Ensemble Competition, Ray received the highest ratings possible. (7) TOM LEEPER, a 3 year gridiron starter, gained 3000 yards in rushing in '85 games and was 1984 captain. Captain of this year's wrestling team, WILL LICHTENBERG won 1st place in the Dondero and Baron Invitational meets. Will placed 2nd in the Kimball Invitational. As 2nd baseman for the last half of the last season in baseball TODD GUSTKE is a good defensive ball player with both control and speed.

MOCK ELECTIONS

The Mock Elections are an event that is solely a senior activity. A meeting is held where seniors are nominated by their classmates for each of the numerous categories. After the top five nominations have been totalled, another meeting is held and the winners of each category is determined by popular vote. One girl and one guy are chosen. The Mock Elections are done purely for fun. It will be quite interesting to see the winners at the first Class of 1985 reunion. (1) MOST CREATIVE: Known for their great creative abilities, Tom McClure and Michele Roy have shown their true talent in various areas and easily capture the title of Most Creative. (2) BEST DRESSED: Gary Miettunen and Sally Haack are well known for their creative and sometimes humorous apparel. (3) BIGGEST FLIRTS: Nothing holds back Tricia DiCosmo and Bill Haubert as they let their true personalities shine through. (4) BEST SMILES: Sarah Wright and Jim Chatas have such warm, charming smiles that they seem to be permanently painted on. (5) MOST WANTED ON A DESERTED ISLAND: A lot of hard work and discipline has led Cristina Lenhard and Chris Sarris to achieve the title of Most Wanted on a Deserted Island.

MOST SHY: (1) Cindy Strzyzewski and Ross Sawyers received this award because of their quietness and timid nature.

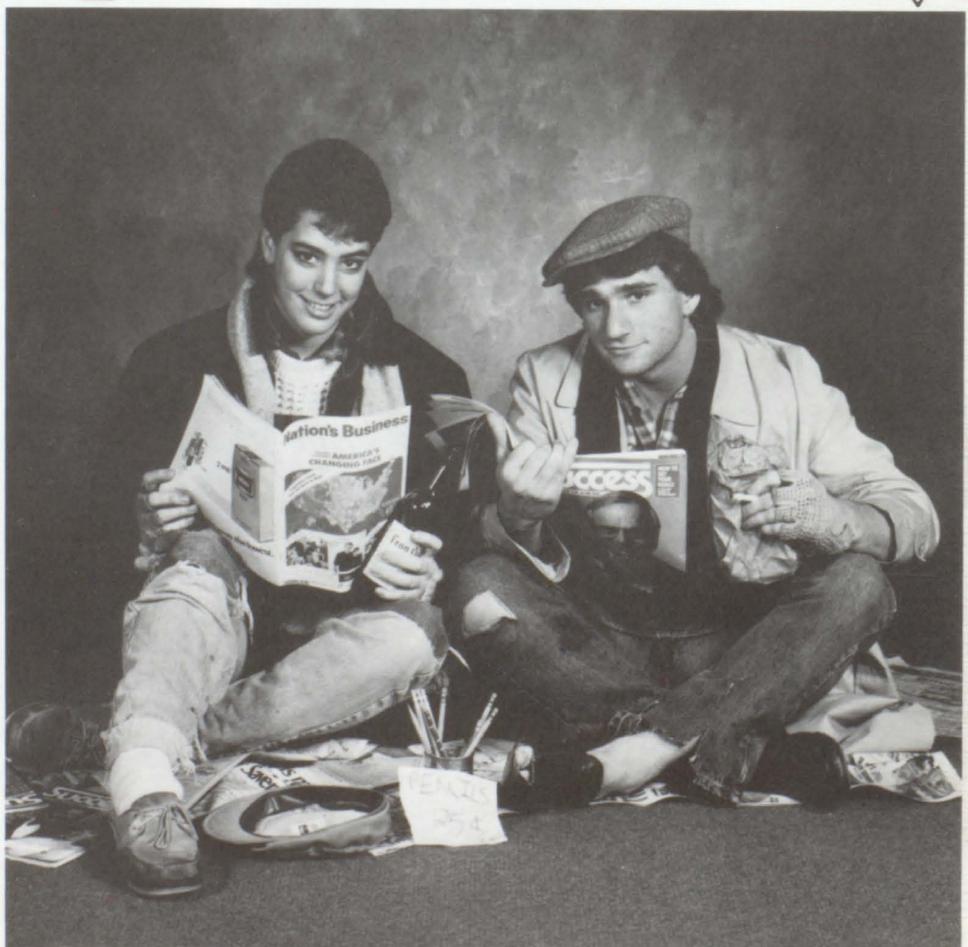

(2) CLASS CLOWN: Chris Dunn and Kevin Cratch have the ability to make any situation into a circus of fun, this makes them sure winners of this title.

(3) MOST LIKELY TO SUCCEED: Their winning personalities, self-confidence, and ability to get along with others make Amy Pounds and Tom Leeper so successful.

(4) NICEST EYES: The eyes of John Fallon and Mary Nahhat reflect the warmth and friendliness that they possess.

(5) CUTEST COUPLE: Tom McClure and Tracey Douglas have been going out for over a year and they still show the warmth and closeness in their relationship.

(6) HARDEST PARTIERS: Sue Scott and Paul Hollow are able to have fun at any time and they go out of their way to make everyone enjoy themselves too.

C. A. Smith Receives Honors After Twenty Years Service

Mr. C. A. Smith has been teaching here at Kimball for twenty years. Fourteen of those twenty have been dedicated to the teaching of first and second year Accounting. During the years he has also taught Typing, Business Law, Business Math, Retailing, and Filing, but his heart lies in the teaching of Accounting. Mr. Smith is a very qualified teacher. He attended Michigan State University for five years with his major in Business Administration. He then went to Wayne State University to receive his teacher certification and then onto Walsh School of Accountancy for further Accounting courses. Mr. Smith also served in the Army for six months active duty and six years in the reserves. Besides teaching, Mr. Smith is also athletically involved here at Kimball. He has been the head coach for golf for nineteen years, the assistant swim coach for three and a half years, and four and half years as the head swim coach. He has also been the swim announcer for several years. Mr. Smith says he is going to be around for quite a long time yet because he is not planning on retiring for at least ten more years. Kimball is honored to have such a dedicated teacher in our midst.

Ads

Jfinancing Kimball's Yearbook are done in part by advertisements. Advertisements account for approximately 10% of the cost of putting out the yearbook. The people in charge of getting ads for the yearbook are the Lancer Staff Members. The members meet everyday during 6th hour, and not only are they responsible for putting together the yearbook, but they are responsible for finding time to go out and collect ads. The Lancer Staff hopes that the student body will thank these sponsors for helping in defraying costs by supporting these local businesses.

ABOVE LEFT: Testifying to the popularity of Royal Oak, many organizations are represented on this Chamber of Commerce sign, which is located at Fourth and Woodward.

RIGHT: A place of information and relaxation for the community, the Royal Oak Library aids many of Kimball's students.

Now affiliated with over 6000 Independent Professional Hardware Dealers in 50 States... from Panama to Canada, Maine to Honolulu.

As the end of the year draws to a close, I would like to take this time to thank the many who contributed to the 1985 Lancer. As for the artwork, I would like to thank Pat Rudish for her fine work in designing the color section, and Tom McClure for his contribution. As a yearbook is nothing without pictures, much thanks to Lifetouch Studios and their photographers: Jerry Isner, Colette Williams, Steve Lafa, Mark Bishop, Gary Tafoya, and Tim O'Leary. A special thanks to Mr. Rosen for helping me to get organized as well as dealing with the many problems that surfaced, and to my staff: Leigh Bond, Kevin Martin, Lynn Marcella, and Kori Schultz. This yearbook started out with a small staff that kept getting smaller and an insufficient amount of input from everyone concerned. Despite all the setbacks, I still think it is a good book. Thanks again to everyone who participated.

Chris McCormick
